Lord Montagu Sees U. S. Vital

Edward John Barrington, Lord Montagu, 26, of distinguished British ancestry, Eton, Oxford, the Grenadier Guards, the youngest peer at the coronation of the late George VI, and a royal guest-to-be at the one for the newest and loveliest Queen Elizabeth, is visiting with us, here and there; and a charming, and intelligent young man he is.

"A visit to America is almost required today," he said. "The country is so vital, and so many tremendous decisions and actions are taking place here. I want to be able to say to my grandchildren that I was in the United States when the United Nations Building was completed, and when a great election and inauguration were had, just as someone from a distant land in ancient days must have spoken to his grandchildren of great things seen in Rome and Athens."

Lord Montagu was not engaged in a public relations act, though that is his business.

The Government

Domestically, it is the budget that is most important in Britain today and which will determine the future of the Tory government, which has done so amazingly well, while the Labor Party has split into quarreling factions, much, indeed, like that of the Capulets and Montagues. The 1954 budget will be the critical one.

"Labor ran its campaign on two issues," he said. "They said, with great ruthlessness, that a Tory victory would mean unemployment and war. We have had neither. And we have done a better job in housing than did the Labor government. We have won important by-elections which indicate the middle class has swung away from the Labor Party—at least for the time being. Presently, that party is without an issue, but it is resourceful and will seek one."

The visiting peer believes further that while the meeting of the Commonwealth nations will be productive of progress, it will not be an easy one. There are hotly warring elements within it of which that of India and Pakistan are but two.

But he has hope that the influence of the new and gallant queen, whose loveliness and character have caught the imagination of the whole world, will smooth out some of the rough spots for her majesty's prime minister.

I asked about some of the new appointments to the House of Lords from the ranks of Labor. He smiled. "They come prospectively, at first," he said, "but after a few days they begin to like it, and they fit in amazingly well."

Coronation

I had heard the Labor politicians were denouncing the Tory government for using the coronation for political gain.

He said they were, but that it was without effect.

"The situation is having one effect," he said, "which I consider unfortunate. The Exchequer is watching every expenditure to avoid criticism, and cutting down until the coronation will be, in a sense, austere compared with the old ones. I think it would have been healthy to have gone all out."

(An associate with him recalled that all coronations since Henry V had been taking on austerity. Henry V had wine to flow in the public fountains for five minutes, and added other gaudy facets not since reproduced.)

Lord Montagu advanced one bit of logic explaining the success of British queens I had not heretofore encountered. A prince consort can do much, especially if he be an intelligent one, as Albert was to Queen Victoria and as Philip is to Elizabeth, to keep the queen in touch with the people and public affairs. Philip, for example, is president of the Association of Automobile Clubs and participates in other business affairs, as well as at public functions, and reports to the queen. She is well informed.

Since currency regulations forbid bringing out adequate money, Lord Montagu is lecturing on "The Stately Homes of England." One of them is his own.

Wilson Rules Out Buying by Aides Who Could Profit

By AUSTIN STEVENS

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—Charles E. Wilson, in his first official act upon becoming secretary of defense, issued late today an order designed to permit the prospective secretaries of the Army and Air Force to take office without divesting themselves of stock holdings in firms doing business with the defense establishment.

A strongly worded memorandum to all key officials in the Pentagon called for their disqualifying themselves in any procurement situation where there was, or appeared to be, a "conflict between self-interest and integrity."

Three to appear The three secretaries of the armed services named by President Eisenhower with Wilson's approval are scheduled to appear tomorrow before the Senate Armed Services Committee, which approved Wilson and his deputy secretary, Roger M. Kyes, only after they agreed to dispose of their General Motors stock and other holdings in companies holding large defense contracts.

Of the three, Robert B. Anderson, named secretary of the Navy, has been said by committee members to be acceptable. Objections were raised during hearings, however, to Harold E. Talbot for the Air Force post and Robert T. Stevens for the Army secretaryship. Talbot holds extensive interests in the Chrysler Corp. and Stevens is one of the owners and is chairman of the board of J. P. Stevens & Co., one of the country's largest textile houses.

Clark Lays PW Rioting To Nam II

By RUTHERFORD M. POATS

TOKYO, Jan. 28.—General Clark's headquarters tonight directly accused the senior Communist truce negotiator at Panmunjom and his assistant of masterminding the bloody riots at Allied prisoner of war camps as a "second front" in the Korean War.

A blunt and unprecedented statement from Far Eastern headquarters said North Korean Lt. Gen. Nam Il was a Soviet citizen and a former officer in the Russian army and that he and his deputy, Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Jo, plotted the riots as part of their "regular assignments."

The statement said "steps were taken to control the situation once it became known," including the Communist plot to break out of the prisoner camps and join guerrillas in fighting behind the UN lines.

The UN Command hinted before that the Communists instigated the riots that brought death to 315 prisoners and one American and wounded 430 POWs. This was the first time the UN Command gave names and spelled out charges.

The Communists seized upon the prison riots during the new disrupted truce talks as a major propaganda weapon and accused the Allies of "murder" time and time again.

Miss Thomson Is Woman of Year; Cited for Red Cross Motor Service

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

Miss Kitty Thomson, chairman of the Night Motor Service of the Atlanta Red Cross, who has given more than 10,000 hours of volunteer work, Wednesday night was proclaimed Atlanta's Woman of the Year for 1952.

Miss Thomson—known to her friends as "Miss Kitty"—was presented a large silver trophy, a Hawaiian lei and a public kiss by Mayor Hartsfield.

More than 400 persons applauded her selection as the 10th anniversary Woman of the Year banquet at the Piedmont Driving Club.

James Malone, chairman of the civic service committee which nominated Miss Thomson, described her as "a fairy godmother and guardian angel to the people of this earth."

He pointed out that she has a full-time job by day—and is on call every night to drive for the Red Cross. He said Miss Thomson and the group of business

N. J. Bank Rob Suspect Jailed Here

A 30-year-old Chicagoan, who fled South with part of the loot from a $70,000 New Jersey bank robbery and a succession of girlfriends, ended up behind the bars of Fulton Tower here Wednesday.

He was identified as Leonard Jashenski, accused of being one of three shotgun-wielders who robbed Broad Street National Bank in Trenton on Jan. 16.

Jashenski was arrested Wednesday morning by Atlanta Det. Lt. James Tuggle and FBI agents who had trailed him to a motor court just outside the city.

With him was a "plump, baby-faced" girl of 15, who became his traveling companion at Kingston, N. C., according to Kline Weatherford, head of the Atlanta FBI office. No charges were made against her.

Agents said she was the "fourth or fifth" girl who had kept him from being lonely on his flight, and she apparently did not know he was living on stolen money.

His other girl friends ranged from 17 to 40, they said.

About $2,150 of the New Jersey bank loot was found in Jashenski's possession—$1,700 of it still in the bank's wrappers. The prisoner gave agents information which enabled them to recover about $5,000 more near Kingston.

About $41,700 of the money was recovered last week with the arrest of John Harold Reverse, 25, of Ashland, N. J., and Wallace C.

AEC Report Skirts H-Bomb Stories

By JAY WALZ

New York Times News Service Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Atomic Energy Commission reported today that the United States is entering the second decade of the atomic age with a capital investment in nuclear research and development approaching $7,500,000,000.

In its latest report, covering the July-to-December period of 1952, the commission stressed the phenomenal growth and the prospect of nuclear power for civilian use in the not distant future.

ATOM ENGINE

There have been important advances in developing atomic power for industry, and to drive aircraft, submarines and other naval vessels, the commission reported.

The report called attention to the "high and sombre significance" of the results of atomic weapon tests last November at the proving grounds at Eniwetok atoll in the Pacific. But this was the commission's only reference to an unofficially reported super-explosion which is believed to have been that of a hydrogen bomb.

QUOTE REPORT

The report went no further than to quote the commission's Nov. 16 announcement that the Pacific test programs included experiments contributing "to the development of a hydrogen bomb. Thus, the commission held to its policy of neither affirming or denying that a hydrogen bomb was set off at Eniwetok."

A third of the 13th semi-annual statement to Congress was devoted to the important part the newly developed Nevada proving grounds

Soviet Says Danes Join In War Plot

By TOM WHITNEY

MOSCOW, Thursday, Jan. 29 (U.S.—The Soviet government today accused Denmark of becoming a direct participant in a war being prepared against Russia.

In a stern note to the Danish government, the Russians said such participation resulted from Denmark's decision to let foreign military forces lodge on Danish territory in peacetime.

Russia declared the Soviet government can not ignore such action by the Danish government. The Russians repeated their protest made in early October against having non-Danish forces on Danish territory.

The Soviet note was delivered to the Danish charge d'affaires in Moscow yesterday by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky.

It was in answer to an aide memoire (reminder note) from the Danish Foreign Ministry last Oct. 29, which in its turn was an answer to a Soviet note on the same question dated Oct. 1.

(Denmark is a founding member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) formed for defense against possible Red aggression.)

The new Soviet note said:

"By giving now (its) consent to the location of foreign armies in peacetime on Danish territory, the Danish government makes Denmark a direct participant in pre-

Sen. Alexander Wiley

FBI Reports Waived for Ike Envoys

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

New York Times News Service Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Senate foreign relations committee yielded today to urgent appeals from the Eisenhower administration and set aside a three-week-old committee policy that required diplomatic appointees to undergo FBI loyalty investigations before taking up their posts.

The chairman, Senator Wiley, asserted that this was not a reversal of position but only an "emergency" alteration. Within two months or so, he said, it would be possible to return to the former requirement.

The Wisconsin Republican said that for the time being the committee would be content, in passing on nominations in the foreign policy field, to accept a statement to this effect from Secretary of State Dulles:

"To the best of my knowledge and belief Mr. (Blank) is well qualified for the position and a loyal citizen and a good security risk. However, I have requested the Federal Bureau of Investigation to conduct a background check."

Shrieking fire sirens at 7 p. m. Thursday in Atlanta will signal the start of the state-wide Mothers March on Polio.

G. M. (Pup) Phillips, Atlanta area Civil Defense director, said the wail of sirens won't mean an air raid but will be coming from city fire trucks at the order of Fire Chief C. C. Styron.

Porch lights or handkerchiefs tied on doorknobs in Fulton and DeKalb counties will signal donations from householders to more than 12,000 mothers who will be making door-to-door calls to reach their goal of $100,000.

Bill Asks Aid for Park, Underground Garage

Photographs and architects' drawings of a million-dollar tree and flower-filled park with subterranean parking facilities in the middle of Atlanta's "government center"—facing the city hall, courthouse and state capitol—were introduced in the Senate Wednesday along with a bill which would finance the building of such a park.

Sen. Everett Millican of Fulton County asked the Senate to pass a bill which would amend the State Office Building Authority to include a $1,000,000 allocation for the park.

The park would be along Mitchell St. between Washington St. and Central Ave. The building authority was created in 1951 by an act which allows it to issue $12,000,000 in revenue certificates to build new state office buildings to house the Supreme Court, Labor and Agriculture departments.

The park, long a dream of Atlanta city officials, now has the support of Governor Talmadge, Millican said. He said a two-level parking garage beneath the park would be leased to a private operator and revenues from the 520 parking spaces would pay for the project.

The park could be leased to the

Harris Vows Amendment Pointing Way

By M. L. ST. JOHN

The House appropriations committee Wednesday challenged teachers and parents crowding the chamber to show where funds can be found for a teachers' pay raise, and Roy Harris of Augusta said the answer would be presented on the floor of the House.

Other developments at the public hearing at the State Capitol on the governor's recommended $230,000,000 "regular" and $28,000,000 "contingent" budgets were:

1. The Baldwin delegation asked for an additional $1,200,000 in the regular budget to put Milledgeville State Hospital attendants on an 8-hour work day.

2. A subcommittee was named to investigate the State Department of Commerce to determine whether its operating expenses can be cut.

When Chairman Herschel Lovett of Laurens insisted that anyone present—"particularly the man who said the budget can be trimmed elsewhere"—come forward and give advice to the committee, no one spoke up.

Later, Harris, at whom Lovett was particularly pointing his challenge, told newsmen an amendment will be offered on the House floor "which will show where the money can come from."

The committee left its invitation for advice from the public generally open until next Wednesday. It took no action on any requests.

In a talk to the committee, Harris declared teachers can be given a reasonable increase in the "contingent" budget "without affecting the Minimum Foundation

THE CAINE MUTINY

Queeg Fast Develops Into Problem Child

By HERMAN WOUK
CHAPTER XVII

The steward Rasselas went searching the ship for the communicator and found him flat on his face on the flying bridge, asleep in the sun. "Suh, Mistuh Keith, suh, Cap'n wants you, suh."

"Oh, God, Thanks, Rasselas."

"Well, Mr. Keith, here's something for you." Queeg took several clipped sheets from an overflowing wire basket and gave them to the communicator. They were Willie's appointment to lieutenant junior grade. Queeg stood, and offered his hand. "Congratulations, Lieutenant."

Willie had resolved that if ever a moment came when Queeg offered to shake hands with him, he would refuse. With that one gesture he would tell the captain once for all what the world of gentlemen, in the person of Willie Keith, thought of people like Queeg. Now it had suddenly come, the chance to make the day-dream real—but the sad fact is, Willie meekly took the captain's hand and said, "Thank you, sir."

"Not at all, Willie. We have our little differences, naturally, but as an officer you measure up very well—very well, on the whole."

Maryk, also in shorts, sat at his desk, fingering a pile of Navy letters. "Pull the curtain, Tom. . . Now, just for the hell of it, tell me this. Can you figure what it is the captain has against Stilwell?"

"Sure, Steve, I know, but you'll just brush me off—"

"Let me hear."

"Okay. He hates Stilwell for being handsome, healthy, young, competent, and naturally popular and attractive—all the things that Queeg is not. Ever read 'Billy Budd,' by Melville? Read it. That's the whole story. Stilwell is a symbol of all the captain's frustrations, all the things he would like to smash because he can't have them, like a child wanting to break another child's toys. Infantilism is very strong in our captain. I'm leaving out a conjectural element which I also think is important, maybe even decisive—the sexual—"

"Maryk made a disgusted grimace. 'I know, we start wading in slime/at this point. But repressed desire can turn to hate, and all of the captain's maladies could fall into a pattern on the theory of an unconscious, violently repressed inversion which fits in beautifully with—'

"I don't know any theories. I'm just a dumb comic-book reader who made a straight C-minus at college. But I know a fact or two that you don't. The captain is out to get Stilwell because he blames him for the time we cut our own towline. He thinks Stilwell deliberately didn't warn him, just to get him in trouble."

"I'm damned!"

"And the captain feels that all his trouble with ComServPac, and for that matter with the Caine officers and crew, stems from that incident. He knows what an idiot that made him out to be. Don't underestimate the captain, Tom."

The novelist shook his head in wonder. "You know, that's the first backstage glimpse I've been allowed into that strange mind. Imagine, blaming Stilwell! When he himself—"

Keefe said, with an embarrassed grin, "You think you've caught me, don't you? Not necessarily. What he told you may still be just a surface symptom of my diagnosis—"

"Okay, Tom. How about this? Will you come up with me tomorrow morning to the medical officer of the Pluto, and tell him what you think of the captain?"

Keefe took a long pause before answering. "Not me," he said. "You can go. It's your place, not mine."

"I can't explain all that psychological stuff. That's your line."

"Did you ever hear of a thing called conspiracy to undermine authority?" said the novelist.

"But if he's crazy—"

"I never said he was crazy. I said he was teetering on the edge. That kind is almost impossible to nail. Once you accuse them, they shrink back into the most convincing goddam normal attitudes you ever saw. It would take a stateside civilian clinic to see into Queeg. Here we'd just hang ourselves."

"All right, Tom." The executive officer jumped off his bunk, and faced the gangling novelist, looking up into his eyes. "That was a request to put up or shut up. You won't put up. Then shut up this talk about the captain being crazy. It's like running around in a powder magazine with a goddam blowtorch. You understand? I swear to Christ I'll report to the captain any further statements you make along that line. Friendship, on this point, no longer means anything to me. That's the straight dope."

It became known among the officers, shortly after the ship left Funafuti in a convoy to Noumea, that Steve Maryk had taken to writing late at night.

Actually, he had begun a record of the captain's eccentricities and oppressions, labeled "Medical Log on Lieutenant Commander Queeg." He kept it locked in his desk safe. Aware that the captain possessed a record of the combination, Maryk quietly opened the lock late one night and reset the dial. He gave a sealed envelope containing the new combination to Willie Keith with instructions to open it only in case of his own death or disappearance.

During the months that followed the log swelled to a voluminous record. By being sent to Funafuti the Caine had fallen into the clutches of the Southwest Pacific command, the Seventh fleet, and it began a grinding, nerve-rasping tour of monotonous escort duty.

During this captivity Captain Queeg became more irascible, secluded, and strange. When he emerged from his cabin he usually performed some minor outrage that was written down in Maryk's log. He incarcerated sailors and put officers under hock; he cut off water, he cut off coffee, and when the movie operator neglected to send him word that a performance was starting he cut off movies for the entire crew for six months.

He developed a settled habit of summoning officers for conferences in the middle of the night. The equilibrium of declared hostility between himself and the wardroom came to seem the normal way of life for the officers. They averaged four or five broken hours of sleep each night. A gray mist of fatigue settled over their minds. They were jumpy, easily moved to quarrel, and more scared and sickened, with every passing week, by the everlasting buzz of the wardroom phone and the message, "Captain wants to see you in his cabin."

Early in June they were rescued from the treadmill delirium of Seventh Fleet duty. The operation order for the invasion of Saipan arrived aboard, and the Caine was assigned to the screen of the main body of attack transports.

An hour before dawn on the invasion day, with the night fading to blue and Saipan beginning to show on the horizon, a humped black shape, Willie was surprised to find himself badly scared. It humiliated him to be afraid, approaching his second combat experience, when he had been so valourously carefree the first time. His innocence was gone. The flame and noise and ruin and falling figures of Kwajalein had penetrated to his bones and viscera even while he had hummed "Begin the Beguine."

The Caine was sent to an anti-submarine patrol sector as soon as the invasion got under way, and there it steamed endlessly in a figure-eight path several thousand yards long. Twelve other ships moved in unison with it, back and forth at ten knots, in a protective fanning curtain around the transports anchored close to the beach. It seemed like a safe place, and Willie's spirits improved as the hours passed.

His morale stiffened when he observed that Queeg was really shutting from one side of the bridge to the other so as to remain sheltered from the beach. There was no mistaking it this time, because the ship kept reversing course every few minutes; and regular as clockwork, each time it presented a new side to Saipan, Queeg would come strolling around to the seaward wing. This gave Willie a dearly cherished chance to display his contempt for the captain by doing exactly the opposite. He sensed that the sailors were noticing Queeg's conduct; there was a lot of sly grinning and muttering. Willie ostentatiously moved to the exposed side with each turn of the ship. Queeg took no apparent notice.

Shortly after Willie took over the binoculars from Keefe for the afternoon watch, a Navy Corsair came flying across the northern hills of the island toward the Caine. All at once it burst into a rosette of flame, and arced into the water with a great splash half-way between the minesweeper and another patrol vessel, the new destroyer Stanfield. Willie telephoned the captain.

"Bye-bye Corsair," said Queeg.

trick. Then the words burst from his throat: "Captain! The Stanfield's being straddled!"

Queeg looked at the subsiding splashes and shouted into the pilothouse, "All engines ahead full! Hard right rudder!"

"There, Captain!" Willie pointed to an orange flash followed by a puff of black smoke, high on a cliff to the north.

"That's the battery, sir!" He ran out on the wing and shouted up to the flying bridge, "Gun watch!"

Jorgenson poked his head over the bulkhead. "Yes, Mr. Keith."

"Shore battery bears 045 relative, distance 4,000, top of the cliff! There, see that flash? Train the main battery on it!"

"Aye, sir!" All guns, shore battery, 045 relative, elevation 10, distance 4,000!"

The Stanfield was whirling in a tight circle through a rain of splashes and, even as it turned, it blasted an ear-splitting salvo from its five-inch guns. Willie saw the Caine's gun crews jump to their places. The line of three-inch guns swung parallel, pointing more and more astern each second as the ship turned.

"Rudder amidships! Steady as you go!" Willie heard Queeg say. The minesweeper was now headed directly away from the shore battery, leaping through the water at 20 knots. Willie ran into the pilothouse.

"Captain, main battery manned and on target!" Queeg seemed not to hear. He stood at an open window, with a quivering smile on his face.

"Captain, request permission to come broadside and fire at the shore battery! We're on the target, sir!" The guns of the Stanfield roared two more salvos astern. Queeg paid no attention. He did not turn his head or his eyes. "Sir," said Willie desperately, "I request permission to open fire with number-four gun! A clear shot over the stern, sir!"

Queeg said nothing. The officer of the deck ran out on the wing and saw the destroyer, a dwindling shape, fire its guns again. A thick ball of dust enveloped the place on the cliff where the battery had been. Flames darted out of the dust as the salvo struck. Again the Stanfield was straddled. It fired four rapid salvos. There were no answering shots; at least there seemed to be no more splashes rising near the destroyer. Already the Caine was too far away for Willie to be certain.

The old minesweeper went on with the carrier to Eniwetok, and was sent back to Kwajalein with some LST's, and then to Eniwetok again with a tanker. The year rounded into August and the Caine still plied among the atolls of the Central Pacific, trapped once more in tedious shuttling, this time in the grip of the Com Fifth Fleet.

Handyman Tells Killing Of Socialite

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 28.—

A 29-year-old Negro handyman found covering in a bed here today told police he strangled and stabbed his socialite employer in her Westport, Conn., home after a drinking bout.

Williams Davis, a stocky little man with a thin mustache, said he killed Mrs. Penny Coats Evans, 30, when she threatened to call police after he struck her. He said he became frightened, got a knife and stabbed her and then wound an electric clock cord around her throat.

Detectives seized Davis in a dilapidated house in the Newark business section where he was hiding with a woman friend. He was taken to police headquarters, where officers said he confessed. He was quoted as saying he and Mrs. Evans, with whom he dined frequently, each had consumed a pint of liquor before the slaying. They had argued about his wages, he said.

Westport police reported an autopsy showed Mrs. Evans had been raped, but Davis denied he had raped her.

Mrs. Evans' body, clad only in a sweater and brassiere, was found on a bed in her blood-spattered bedroom Monday night. Her 2-year-old son was found crying in the next room.

Police sought Davis after his wife informed them he had told her about the slaying. Newark detectives found him here after receiving a tip from Westport police.

Davis put up no fight, police said, when they pulled back the covers of a bed and found him. He told officers he was "extremely remorseful" over Mrs. Evans' death.

Tax in '53Says Colleagues
Will See Light

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Representative Reed (R-N. Y.) predicted today that Republican leaders will "see the light" and support his bill to cut taxes 5% per cent this year and 11 per cent thereafter.

Reed, chairman of the tax-framing House Ways and Means Committee, made his forecast after House Speaker Martin (Mass.) and GOP Leader Halleck (Ind.) insisted that Congress cut spending before it starts reducing taxes.

Reed said he is confident his committee will approve the bill Feb. 16 despite objections from Martin, Halleck and other Republican leaders.

"WHAT'S BEST?"

"The only disagreement between Mr. Martin and Mr. Halleck and me is on what is best for the country," Reed told a reporter.

President Eisenhower also is reported opposed to any tax cut until the budget is balanced. Some sources said he may advise Congress in his State of the Union message Monday.

Reed said he had not consulted Martin or Halleck about the timing of his bill. But he expressed confidence that they would get behind it when he explains his views to them.

The veteran GOP legislator from Upstate New York said he believes a tax reduction will help business and, ultimately, bring a revenue increase.

11 PCT. ON JULY 1

Under Reed's proposal federal income taxes would be reduced about 11 per cent for most persons as of July 1, making the reduction for the 1953 calendar year about 5% per cent.

Under present law taxpayers are scheduled to get an 11 per cent reduction effective next Jan. 1. Reed's bill would advance the date for that cut by six months. Democrats promised to give Reed considerable support when his proposal comes to a vote.

ENGLAND IN FUROR AS SLAYER ESCAPES S DEATH

Briton Hanged; Pal Killed Bobby

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Dull-witted Derek Bentley, 19, was hanged today for a companion's murder of a policeman while an aroused nation debated the rights and wrongs of the strange case that shook even Parliament.

With the shouts and screams of 500 sympathizers milling about the Wandsworth Prison gates ringing in his ears, young Bentley went to the gallows pleading "innocence of conscience."

Two youths—both Bentley's age—were arrested for "insulting behavior" as police attempted to break up the demonstration.

Eleventh-hour pleas for mercy that reached Queen Elizabeth herself failed as her Cabinet adviser—the home secretary—insisted he could not see "any sufficient ground to justify him in advising her majesty to interfere with the due course of the law."

Clemency appeals stressed that the unarmed Bentley was captured 15 minutes before the fatal shot was fired by his 16-year-old accomplice, in an abortive robbery, Christopher Craig.

Both were convicted of murder, but Craig was saved from the hangman's noose by a British law making 18 the legal minimum for hanging. He was given an indeterminate prison sentence.

Conviction of murder carried a mandatory death sentence in Bentley's case—but the jury had recommended mercy.

Home Secretary Sir David Patrick Maxwell Fyfe, a prosecutor at the Nuremberg war crimes trials, refused to recommend commutation of Bentley's sentence even under the pressure of 200 members of Parliament.

While wordy pros and cons flared in the case—in the pubs, the streets and in the lobby of Parliament—a coroner told an eight-man jury sitting on the formal inquest after the execution:

"You are in no way involved in the controversy which rages in this case . . . Your duty here today is to enquire whether the execution was carried out in the proper way as laid down by the law."

Dr. James Hunter Murdoch, chief medical officer at Wandsworth Prison, testified the execution was carried out "expeditiously and humanely."

Even as hope faded last night, the condemned youth told his mother on her last visit to his cell: "I am not afraid to die because I am innocent. As long as you keep your chin up, I will keep mine up. No man's death is on my conscience. I know I did wrong in going with Chris Craig. I never intended killing anyone."

The possibility of a post-mortem debate in the House of Commons on the case still loomed tonight. Sponsors of the clemency petition for Bentley said during a bitter midnight row with the House speaker on the eve of the execution they intended to call Sir Maxwell on the carpet for the advice he gave the Queen.

Under Britain's constitutional monarchy, the Queen has the power to grant mercy in criminal cases, but always abides by the advice of her home secretary.

House Speaker William J. Morrison's ruling that the case could be brought to the floor for debate only after execution of the sentence created an uneasiness among some legislators.

Veteran lobby correspondents said this led to the last-minute rush to sign the final appeal to the home secretary to recommend clemency—the appeal that he turned down.

Troops of 4 Units Tried For Korea Cowardice

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 28—(UP)—Troops of four American divisions have been court-martialed for cowardice before the enemy since start of the Korean armistice talks, a high Eighth Army officer said today.

The disclosure followed publication of reports one officer and 93 enlisted men of the 65th regiment of the U. S. 3rd Division were convicted of misbehavior before the enemy in fighting last October.

Col. Robert L. Lancefield, Eighth Army staff judge advocate, said a group of U. S. 45th (Oklahoma National Guard) Division troops was charged with defection early in 1952; troops of both the U. S. 2nd Division and the U. S. 1st Cavalry Division were tried by courtmartial in late 1951 for refusing to fight.

NOT MAJOR FACTOR

Lancefield made it clear that "combat offenses such as disobedience of orders or running away from the enemy or deserting haven't constituted a major factor in courtmartial in the Eighth Army in the last year and a half."

He said cases of cowardice form about 10 per cent of all general courtmartial in the Eighth Army, including rear area units. At the front, these cases are from 15 to 20 per cent of the total trials.

"In some divisions it is much higher," he said. "There are instances of groups being charged in October-November, 1951, in the 1st Cavalry Division; in September-October, 1951, in the 2nd Infantry Division when it had very heavy casualties on Heartbreak Ridge, and some in the 45th Division around Old Baldy."

MORALE HIGH

Gen. James A. Van Fleet, retiring Eighth Army commander, said in a news conference Sunday morale of the United Nations forces is high. Newsmen covering the front have been impressed with the fighting spirit and discipline of men on the firing line.

Lancefield said about 150 men were called before a 2nd Division military court but that the records have gone to Washington and that he did not know how many were convicted or whether the sentences were upheld.

Lancefield said there had been very few cases of defection in recent months and described those as "isolated instances." He said instances of cowardice occurred chiefly under these circumstances:

- 1—Where the unit has been suffering serious combat losses.
- 2—Where large numbers of replacements are put in combat almost as soon as they arrive.

He added, "These two things can happen together."

Atomic Plant Strikers To Return Today

OAK RIDGE, Tenn., Jan. 28—The $464,000,000 atomic bomb plant project, shut down since a walkout Monday, will resume full operations tomorrow morning, an Atomic Energy Commission spokesman said today.

An international representative of the striking AFL operating engineers assured the contractor on the project, Maxon Construction Co., this afternoon that he will have them "back in force" in time for the morning shift.

The representative, H. C. Miller of Memphis, also told Maxon he would "make all effort to have as many as possible back for the evening shift," and Maxon, accordingly, scheduled the operating engineers to work tonight, according to the AEC spokesman.

"Carpenters who walked off behind the engineers are expected to return also," the spokesman said. That was indicated "following a family meeting—a meeting among themselves this morning."

Loud Talk No Help in Cold War, Says Truman

By RICHARD J. H. JOHNSTON

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution
INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Jan. 28—Harry S. Truman said this morning he didn't think the new Republican administration of President Eisenhower would achieve progress in the cold war with the Soviet Union "just by talking loud."

The former President was commenting on the observation yesterday of Secretary of State Dulles that the Soviets might ultimately succumb to "acute indignation" in their quest for world domination.

Reiterating that he wanted to avoid controversy with or criticism of the new administration in Washington, Truman declared: "These fellows are entitled to try to work these things out... and I hope they do."

"I don't think they will be able to get anywhere by loud talking," he added.

"I hope they are able to get somewhere. I ought to know what they are up against, because I was fighting this thing for eight years. That is all I have been trying to do," he said, "to get peace in the world. I have been trying to get this situation straightened out ever since I became president."

He repeated that he did not wish to appear an impatient critic of the efforts of the new Republican administration in dealing with the problem of finding a solution to the problem of Russian expansionism and belligerence. Nevertheless, he observed, loud talk would not alter the facts. Truman was asked if he had been surprised by the vigor and volume of discussion he had inspired early this week when he said he did not believe the Soviet Union possessed the A-bomb. He said he was considerably surprised.

"I don't understand it because I'm a 'has-been,'" he observed, grinning.

Asked if he meant by that that he intended to "fade away," the former President chuckled and declared:

"I have no ambition to 'fade away' and I don't intend to."

Truman found his Kansas City staff in full swing on the 11th floor of the Federal Reserve Bank Building. Workmen were busy trundling in steel filing cabinets recently arrived from the White House. The first four cabinets bore labels reading, "Speeches—Before 1945."

The former President's office staff said that the total number of letters received by Truman from the post offices of Independence and Kansas City this morning totaled 70,000. Telegrams had run into the thousands as well.

He invited reporters into his inner office to see the globe he had brought from his White House study. He said he had left a larger one, given to him by Eisenhower after World War II, for the present occupant of the White House.

The globe in his present office is 36 inches in diameter. Truman demonstrated the nearness, by air, of vital United States cities to points within the Soviet Union from which an attack could be launched.

The globe bore penciled marks in various places that had figured in world tensions since 1945. Truman erased one of these with his thumb.

He lunched today in Kansas City and returned to his home here for dinner tonight.

Dulles Outlines America's Job

Although the specific actions to attain them are still to be worked out and will unfold during the coming months, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles gave the nation and the world Tuesday night a preview of the broad objectives of United States foreign policy under the Eisenhower administration.

The address, of course, was cleared with the President and Mr. Dulles, as spokesman for the administration, gave us a hint of the tone of Ike's State of the Union message slated for Monday. That address, it is understood, will be devoted largely to foreign policy as was the inaugural speech.

All of these statements of policy are intended to emphasize the overriding importance of America's position in world affairs—a position that makes all other issues small in comparison and which necessarily must shape most of our domestic programs. In other words, the United States must lead the free world to victory in the cold war against communism and the "deadly serious" threat of "encirclement" by Soviet Russia and her satellites or perish ourselves.

It is only fair to point out that the objectives as already outlined by the President and Mr. Dulles are substantially those in effect in the previous administrations. In his final address to the nation, President Truman called for continuation of policies that would strengthen the free world and lead eventually to the Iron Curtain captives' throwing off the bonds that hold them in slavery. Efforts in this direction will be intensified and the United States will recapture the offensive in the cold war under the Dulles and Eisenhower program, if their plans work out, forcing the Communists to "want peace in Korea" and elsewhere.

It is a good thing that Mr. Dulles is losing no time in making his first trip to the NATO countries. Western European unity holds the key to success of all our efforts. There has been a dangerous drift away from this ideal and away from United States leadership in the transition period of administrations. He has some fence-mending to do but there is no reason to believe that he cannot succeed in renewing the common objectives and purposes that have guided NATO until recent months.

Chancellor Adenauer said only this week that ratification of the Allied-German treaties depends to a great degree upon the presence of a strong and influential United States high commissioner. Germany will do little until the arrival of the new commissioner, Dr. James B. Conant. Similar waiting games seem to prevail in England as well as in France and other NATO countries.

Mr. Dulles and President Eisenhower are losing no time in getting a positive program under way in the cold war with Russia. Backed by the Congress and the American people, it should produce concrete results in the coming months. Our state of rearmament and the groundwork for positive action already laid make possible a more aggressive approach to the cold war than in the past.

Auto Tax Leak Must Be Plugged

There is nothing abnormal about the fact that much of the proposed legislation in Georgia concerns the automobile.

Car ownership in this nation represents one automobile for every three persons. Current models "rev" up to 210 horsepower. Of the car of the future, an automotive engineer says one can walk into the styling studios of any auto maker and find drawings of automobiles that look like they're going 100 miles an hour when they are parked at the curb.

When those conditions exist, it is normal, natural and highly necessary that the legislators give much attention to putting the automotive vehicle and its owner into their proper place in society.

Proposed safety legislation seems to be making progress. The certificate of title bill faces tough sledding because of the opposition of new car dealers, the very ones who should be first to advocate a title law for the protection of their customers.

Another vehicle regulation bill that merits passage is that which would require payment of taxes before issuance of a license. Inadequacies of present statutes are loopholes through which thousands, even millions, of dollars in tax money escape. Owners register their cars outside the county of residence, even outside the state, to dodge the ad valorem tax. Nonresident owners buy tags in Georgia to take advantage of our low license fee and to escape tax payment in their own state.

Passage of the property tax license plate bill would be a benefit to honest car owners in Georgia, to our state, county and city treasuries and to our sister states. The only fellow who won't benefit is the tax dodger.

An alternative is abolishing the ad valorem tax on cars, raising the license fee to a much higher level and rebating to counties and cities on the basis of car registration.

One way or the other, the leak should be plugged.

Robert Frost Honors Atlanta and Georgia

Atlanta and Georgia once again have the pleasure of an appearance by one of America's outstanding literary artists of this century: Robert Frost, four times winner of the Pulitzer Prize for poetry, who spoke Wednesday at Agnes Scott College and who will make an address Friday at the University of Georgia.

The 77-year-old poet, who has frequently lectured at the Decatur and Athens schools during the last decade, has gained deserved world renown for his poetic expressions of New England, presented in a simple, lucid style that is as refreshing and invigorating as the rustic people and unpretentious life of which he writes.

Living in an age that has been characterized by emotions fluctuating from extreme optimism to extreme pessimism towards the attainment of peace among men, Mr. Frost has achieved what literary critic Mark Van Doren terms a "golden mean which, far from signifying that extremes have been avoided, signifies that they have been enclosed and contained."

Mr. Frost's verses exalting the virtues of the New England countryside contain fundamentals which are not peculiar to his section of the country. Indeed, they are voicings of basic values that have contributed to the growth of all sections, North, East, West and South, into a unified America.

What could be more typical of the American scene than these opening lines from the well-known "Birches":

When I see birches bend to left and right
Across the lines of straighter
darker trees,
I like to think some boy's been swinging them.
But swinging doesn't bend them
down to stay,
Ice storms do that. Often you must have seen them
Loaded with ice a sunny winter morning
After a rain...

Atlanta and the South are happy in his visits.

We'll Gladly Settle For Fences That Fence

From the American Association of Landscape Architects meeting in Atlanta comes word that fences are coming back in style. But not so much for the original purpose, say the landscapers, as for windbreaks and guarantees of privacy.

That is fine, we're glad to hear it. But here in Georgia we'll be happy at the universal adoption of fences for a first and foremost utilitarian purpose—to keep cows off the highways.

Oxford Re-Elected For Job Well Done

Terrell County takes genuine pride in Dixon Oxford, a native son who has just been re-elected by the General Assembly of Georgia as a member of the State Highway Board for a six-year term. His unanimous approval for the post by the full membership of the House and Senate is testimonial of a job well done as well as confidence and faith in his integrity and ability to perform the duties of the office in a highly creditable and acceptable manner.

In the years he has served on the board, the fruits of his labors, as well as those of his colleagues, have been made evident all over Georgia. Old highways have been resurfaced; new roads have been built and for the first time the state is matching all federal funds available for highway construction.

Not only that, but Georgia's Highway Department has been taken out of politics and far better roads are being built on the basis of a planned program of benefit to all the people rather than a favored few.

The people of Georgia can confidently expect a continuation of a good roads program under the present board and we hasten to add our congratulations to Mr. Oxford on his election and to wish him well in his service to the people.

The 'Liberals' Will Bear Scars

WASHINGTON—The battle over the confirmation of Charles E. Wilson as Secretary of Defense will leave a few scars, but they will be borne mostly by those who, notwithstanding the sale of his stock, attacked his character and his ethics. Politically, the episode will have as little importance over the years as did the disgraceful fight in the Senate in February, 1930, against the confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes to be Chief Justice. Some of the men who fought that nomination lived to regret their attack, which was far more virulent and malicious than what has been witnessed in the Senate this week.

Once Mr. Wilson announced his intention to sell his stock, the only possible objection allegedly was to his "past connections," and the implication was broadcast that he could not be a fair and disinterested public official because of his previous employment or associations.

This was the argument also made by a group of "insurgent" Republicans and Democrats 23 years ago against the confirmation of Mr. Hughes. At first, the late Senator Norris of Nebraska, leader of the "liberals" and "insurgent" Republicans, predicted that the nomination would be approved, "unanimously" by the Senate judiciary committee, of which he was the head, but a few days later the insurgents decided the opportunities for demagoguery and political capital were too good to pass up.

Thus, Senator Norris, in a Senate speech, said that Mr. Hughes had amassed a fortune in law practice and represented "untold wealth." He declared it was "reasonable to expect . . . that these influences have become part of the man. His viewpoint is clouded. He looks through glasses contaminated by the influence of monopoly as it seeks to get favors by means which are denied the common, ordinary citizen."

It was the late Sen. Frederick Gillett of Massachusetts who told the Senate that if the criticism of Hughes for representing wealthy clients were to be accepted, no great lawyer could ever be confirmed as Chief Justice. The same argument has been made this week—namely, that, because a man has been associated with big business, he becomes ineligible to serve his country in the cabinet of a President of the United States, notwithstanding the fact that he sells all his stock holdings and converts them into cash or government bonds.

So far as political aftereffects are concerned, if the Department of Defense does a good job, if President Eisenhower can win the "cold war" and get the American boys home from Korea, and if taxes can come down, the American people will not even remember four years from now what the Wilson confirmation controversy was all about.

Gladstone Williams

President to Set Pattern Monday

WASHINGTON—The pattern and program of the new administration will be set next Monday, when President Dwight Eisenhower goes before a joint session of Congress to deliver his first formal message to the State of the Union. In it he is expected to outline the course he will take on foreign and domestic policies. Hence the message promises to assume an importance of the first magnitude. Presumably, it will offer a blueprint of the legislative road that lies ahead, as well as chart the course we are to follow in the field of foreign policy for the next four years. On the lighter side, the message will be an innovation in that it will mark the first time a Republican legislative program has been submitted to a Republican-controlled Congress by a Republican President in more than two decades.

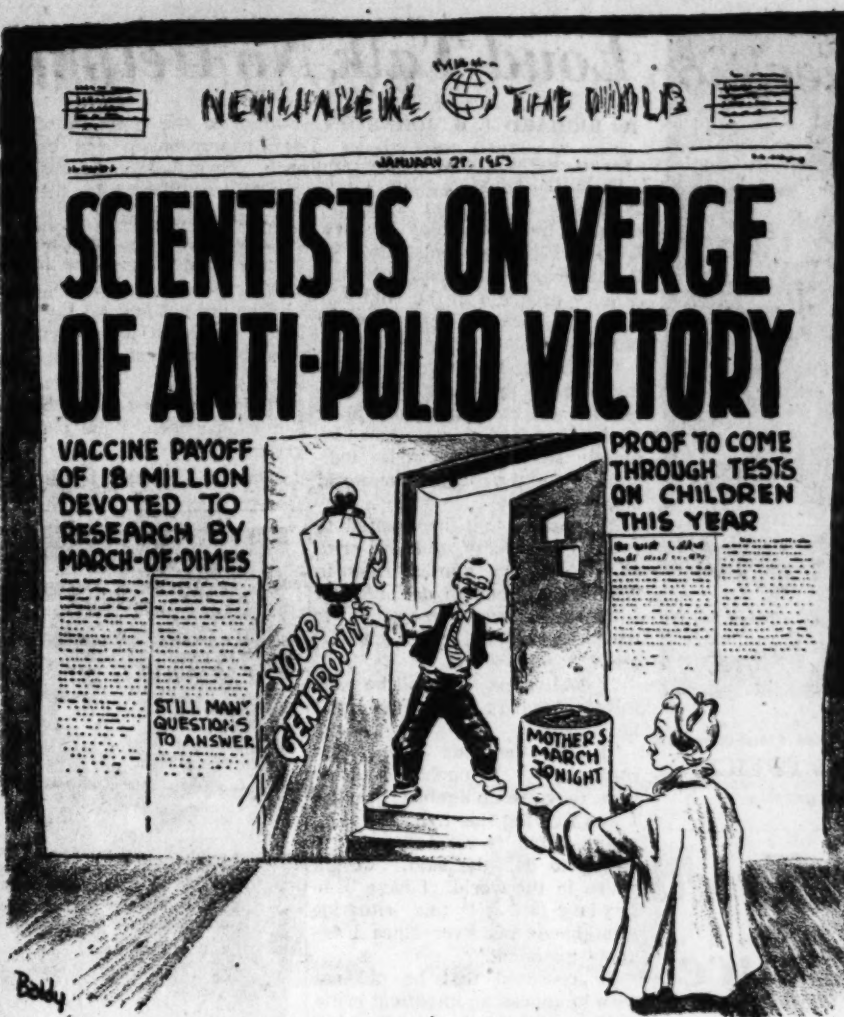

In the light of all the discussion of leading issues that took place in the election campaign, few surprises are expected to be found in the President's address to Congress.

Two of the toughest problems the administration and the Republican-controlled Congress will have to tackle are on the score of government expenditures and federal taxes. During the campaign the Republicans promised reductions in both. How far they may be able to go in this direction will depend on foreign policy and the course of events in Korea.

Some of the isolationist elements of Congress are urging a marked reduction in our allied aid program. From his experience as NATO commander in Europe, General Eisenhower has indicated he is not prepared to go along with them too far in this direction. It is possible that some schism may develop on this phase of his message.

In conformity with Republican pledges to reduce taxes, leaders of the party in Congress have already proposed that the excess profits taxes on business be allowed to die when they expire next June and that the 11 per cent cap on the board tax increase imposed on individual incomes, due to expire Dec. 31, be done away with on June 30. The Eisenhower State of the Union message is expected to throw light on this situation.

As to the Reciprocity Trade Agreement Act, President Eisenhower in his inaugural address seems to have indicated his position clearly enough. He spoke of "economic health as an indispensable basis of military strength" and went on to say that "we shall strive to foster everywhere, and to practice ourselves, policies that encourage productivity and profitable trade," adding that "the impoverishment of any single people in the world means danger to the well being of all other peoples." The high tariff protectionist elements who are opposed to our reciprocal trade program can get little consolation from this.

'Hamiltonians' Are Back, With No Jefferson To Save Us, She Warns

Atlanta—I commend to your readers an article in the January "Atlantic Monthly" magazine, "Jefferson and Civil Liberties (Tyranny in America)" by Claude Bowers. It recites conditions of 150 years ago, when Alexander Hamilton headed the "Federalists." The Hamiltonian theory was that all wealth and power should be in the hands of a few (the very rich), which is the Republican theory of government. You will see that within the past four days, history of 150 years ago has quickly begun to repeat itself.

Last Tuesday, I witnessed the inauguration of General Motors—now we can be sure the "world is made safe for monopolies," including cartels. Within four days, these are just a few developments, which they blasphemously call a "crusade."

Charles Wilson said: "What is good for General Motors is good for the nation," and when his appointment broke laws, Sherman Adams (lumberman) said: "We will tide this one out," they now hope to wrest TVA from government ownership to so-called "private" industry, meaning the electric power monopoly; Sen. Styles Bridges asked, "What has TVA ever done for New England?" New Englanders are dedicated to stopping industry from going South, especially textiles, and are even agitating labor to this end.

Sen. Taft plans to abolish the present small-business committee and set up a new committee under Sen. Homer Capehart, champion of big business; Eisenhower pledged he would back the tideland oil group, though the U. S. Supreme Court has ruled that the oil belongs to the nation; and we still have Nixon.

So, goodbye, TVA; goodbye, small business; goodbye, tideland oil; goodbye, Supreme Court rulings; goodbye Southern growth and prosperity and industry (especially textiles)—it's been nice to have known you, but now you belong to history—history of 150 years ago. And now we do not have Thomas Jefferson to save the nation, maybe the citizens will do it, come next election.

GOP Must Prove Itself First, Says Savannah

Savannah—In no way are these comments intended to detract from the inspiring aspects of the inaugural ceremonies or from General Ike's personality, but only to point out that the policies so ably enunciated by our new President do not in any important particulars differ from those formulated and carried forward by the Truman administration.

This being true it would appear that the new administration has quite a job on its hands. Instead of nonconstructive criticisms it must demonstrate to the satisfaction of the home folks that anything good the Democrats may have done and can do, the Republicans could have done and will do better. In complete sincerity one may wish them full success. However, until these better things occur and a change of heart is evident, those who know their past records will continue to be harassed by doubts.

Southern Industry Unfair To Labor, Charges Senoian

Senoia—A few years ago Northern pulpwood sellers enjoyed a price differential. They contended that it took longer to grow pulpwood in their cold climate and therefore it was worth more than similar trees grown in the South. Concerted effort by aroused Southerners caused the OPA to eliminate this unfair discrimination. The equalization of freight rates, North and South, is another case in point.

Yet Southern industrialists try to justify wage differentials by saying labor can live cheaper in the South. They would like to continue to enjoy an unfair advantage in the market place. It seems high time that Southern labor enjoys whatever advantage may be due to climate. A. J. MORGAN.

Emoryite Says Concertgoers Crudely, Rudely Walked Out

Emory—The concert Thursday of the Atlanta Symphony orchestra with pianist Eugene Istomin was great except for one thing—the people of Atlanta let their sympathy down!

Not all the people of Atlanta, for there were many appreciative souls attending the concert who responded very well after Mr. Sopkin's excellent conducting of the magnificent Beethoven Seventh Symphony. However, the City Auditorium contained a conspicuous number of empty seats.

But the crowning blow came at the end of the concert, even before the orchestra had finished. Many of our fellow citizens rudely and crudely walked out without the slightest show of appreciation for the great amount of effort these fine musicians put into preparation for this concert. I myself would like to have heard a couple of encores.

Sample Ballots Aid Intelligent Voting

During the first days of the General Assembly a bill was introduced which, if passed, will make it possible for newspapers in the state to publish a sample ballot prior to elections.

Under present laws this is illegal. The purpose of the present law is to safeguard the ballot and eliminate, as nearly as possible, any tampering with the way a person votes.

However, it has been shown time and time again that a lot of the voters in this state go to the polls without proper instructions in the correct way to mark their ballot. Because of this a lot of voters have their ballots thrown out when the votes are counted. It is even possible for a person to so incorrectly mark his ballot that his vote is counted differently from the way he intended it to be counted.

If a sample ballot can be made available to all the voters, then those in doubt about the correct way to mark the ballot can obtain the necessary instructions before he goes to the polls. There is no reason why the publication of a sample ballot should make elections any less fair or accurate than they are now and it certainly would be a service to those in doubt about the correct way to mark a ballot.

Most newspapers would be glad to publish the ballot as a public service, if it were legal for them to do so.

How Should One Read the Bible?

In the mail comes this letter which deserves a more complete answer than space may permit: "My acquaintance with the Bible represents more of a smattering of ignorance than any profound or useful knowledge of the Book. When curiosity or need leads me to a reading from the Bible, I get bogged down, so to speak, in the legalism of Leviticus or the census-taking of Numbers. What suggestions can you offer for a more profitable or helpful approach?"

Every pastor is asked similar questions. I wish I could give a simple thumb-nail rule and let it go at that. But that would be inadequate, for the implications of the questions are too vital for life and faith for a snap judgment. Several observations come to mind, however. First, the mood of one's approach to the Holy Scriptures is of considerable consequence. Secondly, the manner of reading may determine altogether the result of your reading. Thirdly, one should know what the Book is and what it is not.

Let me consider the last point first. The Bible is a collection of 66 separate books. While each may be thought of as an entity, there are great common themes which bind all together in purpose and spirit. The writing of these books continued, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit as we believe, for a period perhaps in excess of 1,000 years.

The Bible is a book of faith. It is not a volume of scientific speculations or of chronicles written according to the historical method or of definitive biography or of literature written for the sake of being literary. The Bible is not a manual of psychology or of sociology or of ancient economics. Of course, there are elements of all these, because the Bible is as broad as life itself.

While the sciences deal with demonstrable "fact," the Bible offers revealed "truth." The varied sciences study the physical world and physical man, but the Bible interprets the world and man spiritually. To recognize this is important lest we fall into the peril of some post-Darwinians who thought that choice between physical interpretation and spiritual interpretation was mandatory.

This helps us, for instance, to understand why so many of our great scientists, knowing that a scientific explanation of the universe is only part of the story, read the Bible to search for the great truths of the spirit. "Man doth not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord doth man live" (Deut., 8:3).

Friday let me turn to the subject of a person's manner or attitude of Bible reading.

The Mothers Are Coming

Don't ask me what I'm doing tonight. I already know. This is the evening I baby-sit. Except that the word "baby-sitting" is taboo at our house. Because of her advancing age, The Red-head has outlived the phrase. Henceforth, it must be daughter-sitting or perhaps the little lady's home companion.

At any rate, this is the night I do the supper dishes while the Lady Who Reads Over My Shoulder acts as a "contact mother," a foot soldier in a mighty army of women going out to collect funds for the March of Dimes. In Marietta and Montezuma, Cuthbert and Calhoun, Richmond and Rome, Savannah and Sylvestria, Atlanta, Athens and Augusta—in cities all over Georgia and the rest of America, mothers will march against polio. And fathers, even as I, will police the kitchen and the young'un's and put the latter to bed right after Groucho Marx.

"Let Your Light So Shine" is the Mothers' March watchword—a porch light turned on or a lighted lamp in a front window to show that you are willing and waiting to give toward the care and treatment of polio victims and to further the work of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The hour will vary a little, but in most cities it will be between 7 and 8 p. m. That's it! Tonight's the night for the big push in the antipolio drive. It's the occasion for M-Hour, when thousands of Pauline Reverses will make the rounds to collect the "premium on your polio insurance," so:

Throw out the Light Line, kindle a flame,
Join in a great fight, bring help to the lame,
Give a buck if you can, much more if you see
How polio threatens your own family.

THE MOTHERS' MARCH is by no means the only antipolio money raiser. In Floyd County it's dancing, square and round; in Columbus society misses will shine shoes for "March" dimes. In the Gwinnett County schools the class which chips in most gets a trip to the Little White House at Warm Springs. Clayton County basketball tourney proceeds will go into March of Dimes coffers. And Jasper Countians will select their "Ugliest Man" at 10 cents a vote. Blakely collects at a toll gate at each end of town. Lyons is raising cash with a liars' contest. In Waycross it's an auction, in Vidalia a golf tournament and in Savannah a king-and-queen show. And so it goes—miniature iron lung collections, school collections, business collections, labor collections, sports events, special events—all adding up to an America united in the fight on a crippling and baffling disease which last year took its highest toll among children and young adults.

First Loyalty Check on U. S. Nationals Holding UN Jobs Is Started

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Jan. 28—Machinery for loyalty investigations of all United States citizens employed by the United Nations—the first such check in the history of the organization—was put into operation today.

The first batch of 1,000 questionnaires was brought to UN headquarters, by Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., new UN delegate, and 1,000 more will be sent here soon. The forms—ask the questions about background and affiliations put to all applicants for

U. S. government jobs—will be distributed by the UN among 1,000 U. S. staff members. Within a matter of days—possibly tomorrow—UN employees trained by an expert from the U. S. Civil Service Commission will begin taking the fingerprints of all United States nationals. The UN has made it clear, although there has been no official pronouncement yet, that it regarded the filling out of the questionnaires and agreement to be fingerprinted as the duty of United States citizens employed here. From now on, all U. S.

citizens applying for UN jobs also will have to fill out the forms and be fingerprinted. The four-page questionnaire and the fingerprint charts will be turned over to the U. S. Civil Service Commission. For the approximately 1,330 minor employees of United States citizenship—clerks, guards, mechanics and the like—the investigation will be relatively simple. Their names and fingerprints will be checked against United States files and unless "derogatory information" turns up that will be all. If information rais-

Atlanta Trio Tops State AA Scoring

Mitchell, Austin, Akers
Place 1-2-3 on Cage List

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Three scintillating pointmakers from Atlanta's City League—North Fulton's Wade Mitchell, Grady's Richard Austin and Bass' Lane Akers—are roosting on the one, two, three perches in the state Class AA high school scoring list after games of last week.

Mitchell's 18 and 23-point stints will play his last game for the Smithies this week, are those pouring in on above the 14-point mark.

Akers, playing with a consistently losing Bass team, was a marked man but continued to climb averagewise with 19 and 22-point nights, giving him a stratagical 18.1 average for eight games.

Danny McGregor, the Indiana-born sharpshooter for Augusta Boys Catholic, is not on a winning team either, but he did his share last week, bagging 47 points in losing games with Savannah and Commercial and upping his per-game average to 17.6. That moved him from sixth to fourth place in the individual race.

Harry Boyce, the Columbus High ace, went to the well once during the week, fired 27 points and leaped from 11th to fifth place. He now has a 17.2 average on 86 points in five games.

Next in order come the two Allen boys—Ray of Augusta's Richmond Academy and Richard of Atlanta Brown—with 15.8 and 15.3 marks. Ray slumped sharply after occupying the third slot last week with a 19.2 median. Richard, who will end his career with the state defending champions on Friday because of impending graduation, moved up after being 14.9 the previous week.

Joe Bell of East Point's Russell High, only player in AA ranks who has bagged more than 300 points, took over the top spot in Region Four with a 15.3 average on 301 points in 19 games as Cedar-town's Terry Tucker, previous Region Four pace-setter, dropped slightly in effectiveness, going from a 15.5 to 14.6 average during the week.

Billy Whittle and Claude Boynton, both of Albany; Robert Burgess of Columbus Baker; Jimmy Herring of Moultrie and Buster Todd of Savannah Commercial all are firing away at a better than 15-points-per-game clip.

Savannah High's Buddy Shuman, Smith's Bobby Keamun, Roosevelt's Jack Bush, Cedar-town's Tucker, Brown's Bobby Baldwin, Lanier's Billy Mason and Lanier's Marvin Moon, who

Story of Nippon Swimmer—From Pool to Wool

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 28.—Japan's swimming star, "flying fish" Hironoshim Furuhashi, arrived here from Tokyo Wednesday for a six months' study of the wool business before he becomes a wool buyer.

Furuhashi said he might give a few swimming exhibitions during his stay but his studies would prevent him from competing in any championship meets here. He holds the world record in the 1,500-meter swim.

DODD, BUTTS, HEARN, APPLING, WARD

Diamond, Grid, Golf Stars Hobnob At Gala Progressive Club Event

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

So many sports celebrities and so many small fry autograph seekers were milling around the spacious quarters at the 14th annual Father-Son banquet of the Progressive Club Wednesday night that they quit counting noses and began counting fingers—cramped fingers, that is.

College and professional football stars and coaches were the proverbial dime a dozen. Pro baseball agents of renown, including a goodly delegation of Big Leaguers from Georgia and a host of Atlanta Cracker moguls, were more than plentiful, and Coach Wally Butts and Bobby Dodd and their Georgia and Georgia Tech coaching staffs brought along enough football players of All-Star caliber to give anyone a good argument in favor of continuance of the two platoon system.

Harvie Ward, the 1952 British amateur golf champion, had to be introduced to Jim Hearn, the New York Giants' pitcher; Charlie Tripp, Dick Yelvington and Ray Beck, the Georgia and Georgia Tech-spawned professional football players, and a host of yesteryear gridiron and diamond greats who, to him, were only legend.

Luscious Lucius Appling, minor league manager of the year after leading Memphis to the Dixie Series championship, and Whitlow Wyatt, new Cracker coach and former major league pitching great, were just a couple of guys named Luke and Whit in the overflow of scintillants who flashed across the sports scene sometime during the last four decades.

Art DeCarlo and Leon (Hard-rock) Hardeman, Georgia and Tech gridiron by-words, were part of the window dressing, and Harry Babcock and Pepper Rodgers, also well-known for heroics in the interests of the same teams, were two flabbergasted, chagrined stooges for the legerdemain of magician Gali Gali, who fled from the hall after his act with Dodd and Butts in full pursuit, simultaneously shouting, "You're my 1953 quarterback."

BANQUET BANTER—Luke Appling twitted Whitlow Wyatt with, "When I bring my Memphis Chicks to town next year, keep an eye on my pitchers, too, and let me know when I should relieve for the youngsters only."

You're coaching for the Crackers, but I'll take your word for it on when my pitchers are through for the night." . . . Pres. Earl Mann, Vice-Pres. Jasper Donaldson, and concessions impresario Paul Ovaros and Coach Wyatt represented the Crackers in the gathering of 400 . . . Georgia's Wally Butts, backed by aides Harry Wright, Spec Landrum and publicity man Dan Magill, said, "I just showed up to give my annual congratulations to Coach Dodd and his staff for winning the SEC championship and a bowl game."

Tech's complete staff was there to bask in the limelight of Sugar Bowl victory over Ole Miss and to aid in the showing of the film, "Georgia Tech Highlights of 1952." Frank Broyles, Ray Graves, Sam Lyle, Whitley Urban, Lewis Woodruff, Tonto Coleman, Bob Bossoms, Bo Hagan were other coaches present along with new business manager Howard Ector and publicity director Ned West . . . Tech's Sugar Bowl champs were represented by Hardeman, Rodgers, George Morris, Orville Vereen, Bobby Moorhead, Buck Martin, Hal Miller, Pete Brown, Larry Morris and Glenn Turner . . . Georgia players enjoying the gala shindig included Zeke Bratkowski, Johnny Carson, Joe O'Malley, Babcock and DeCarlo.

Jerome (Skeets) Kahanow emceed the affair in great style and Progressive Club prexy Joe Zimmerman welcomed the galaxy of stars and personalities. . . . Sid Scarborough, athletic director of Atlanta schools, and Buster Mott, University of Georgia all-South-eastern halfback of the 1920s, both ex-Tech High stars, recalled the "good old days" together. . . . Door prizes, drawn by Hearn and Tech and Georgia stars, were for the youngsters only.

DIXIE CAGE COACHES IN FIRM STAND AGAINST 'ONE & ONE'

TECH, VANDY PLAYERS RELAX IN WHAT-DOES-IT-MATTER ATTITUDE
Under "One-and-One" Rule, Jacket Howard Sneed Gets Second Shot Anyway if First Misses

By EDWIN POPE

Southeastern Conference coaches in particular and Dixie mentors in general are up in arms over basketball's new "one-and-one" rule, which furnishes a player, on any foul, a second free throw if he misses the first.

They say it is taking the character out of the game and unnecessarily delaying play.

"In no other sport is a participant given a second opportunity to compensate for an initial weakness," LSU's Harry Rabenhorst told The Constitution. Rabenhorst, 25-year-old head-coaching veteran in the Southeastern Conference, believes the rule encourages sloppy foul-shooting.

"What's the use to make a team practice on free throws if it doesn't make any difference whether they hit the first one or not?" he asks. "Why not give a baseball batsman six strikes instead of three? That's what it amounts to—doubling the chance."

Other mentors responding to a Constitution survey voice a vociferous and all but unanimous dislike of the regulation. The other new rule, under which every foul in the last three minutes is automatically good for two shots regardless of the success of the first, met a mixed reaction, but there was little neutral about coaches' feelings on the "one-and-one."

"It was put in to discourage fouling," says Whack Hyder of Georgia Tech, "but it hasn't. Why, our game with Vanderbilt Monday night produced 62 fouls . . . 62 times in a game-time of 40 minutes where active play must be stopped for free-shooting. You should not further penalize a player who fouls when his opponent is merely dribbling, or running, or standing still. And the rule has prolonged every game."

Spot checks indicate that each "extra" shot causes from 15 to 30 seconds' delay. In a 62-foul game such as Tech-Vandy here Monday, that adds to between 15 and 30 minutes of extra play—very little of it active.

Florida's Johnny Mauer thinks the frequent delays in play caused by the rule are its chief drawbacks. "And free-throwing should not dominate basketball," he declares. "It wasn't originally intended as a foul-shooting contest."

Paul Gregory of Mississippi State feels that the regulation has an advantage for players because it affords them frequent breathers when the first shot is missed. But, cross-state, Ole Miss' Bonnie Graham maintains flatly, like Hyder, that the rule has not achieved its avowed purpose—to prevent roughness.

Auburn's Joel Eaves, long an advocate of precision foul-shooting—on the first try—feels the same way. "They put that rule in to cut out the deliberate foul for profit. Instead, it merely penalizes the team with the best foul-shooters."

Nor can Georgia's Harbin (Red) Lawson, Vanderbilt's Bob Polk, Alabama's Johnny Dee, or Tennessee's Emmett Lowery see the value of giving a player a second chance after a first miss.

Tulane's Cliff Wells was the only SEC coach not to express himself.

To gather a more general sampling of Dixie's opinion, The Constitution asked three Southern Conference tutors—Clemson's Banks McFadden, North Carolina State's Everett Case and South Carolina's Frank Johnson—to submit opinions.

Case says he is a fervent believer in the old rule, where the foul committed determines the number of shots awarded.

McFadden feels the one-and-one rule is confusing and unnecessarily adds to the point-total of a game. "The rule cost us a 66-60 loss to Georgia this season," says McFadden. "Georgia made nine extra points on the second free throw. Clemson took advantage of the rule only twice. The difference in the score was six points. So what good did it do my ball club to cel at foul-shooting?"

Johnson thinks the rule "removes the value and spirit of a free throw . . . has not stopped fouling and delays the game."

Vandy's Edwards On Shaky Ground

Board Seeking Dismissal
But Chancellor May Veto

By FURMAN BISHOP

Another fire has been built under Bill Edwards, the Vanderbilt football coach. The Constitution learned from an informed source in Nashville Wednesday. However, as two years ago, when the Commodore head coach teetered between dismissal and a new contract, it appears that he will survive the latest attack.

The Constitution's source said the Vanderbilt athletic board had recommended that Edwards and the entire football coaching staff be replaced. This recommendation, however, is subject to action by Chancellor Harvie Branscomb.

"It isn't likely," the Nashville source said, "in view of Chancellor Branscomb's stand on de-emphasis of football, that he will be of a mind to fire a football coach for not winning. This would reflect on his stand against over-emphasis of football and on Vanderbilt University."

It was two years ago that Chancellor Branscomb first started his stand on conservatism in football at Vanderbilt. It was also at this time that Edwards, on whom open season seems to exist the year around, was tendered a new contract at a time when his discharge seemed certain.

Vanderbilt, incidentally, is defending the unique position of never having fired a football coach for a poor season.

The board took its action recently, but first hint that Edwards was on the fire again came out of the NCAA meeting in Washington earlier in the month. There is a good chance that Chancellor Branscomb will act on the board recommendation before the week is out, but that his act will be a renewal of Edwards' contract.

BILL EDWARDS
In The Fire Again

The board's action was based on grievances concerning recruiting, the poor record in the 1952 season and especially the miserable conclusion of a 46-0 defeat by Tennessee.

Edwards came to Vandy from the staff of the Cleveland Browns to succeed Red Sanders in 1949.

BASEBALL BRIEFS

Bobby Thomson Signs; Ed Mathews Cited

Condensed From Constitution Wire Reports
Bridegroom Bobby Thomson signed his 1953 New York Giants contract for approximately $35,000 Wednesday.

At a following press conference, in answer to a question why he did not steal more often, the fleet Scot replied that Leo Durocher runs the ball club but indicated he would like the opportunity to steal more bases.

Durocher interrupted: "It's a hell of a suggestion and maybe Bobby will try to steal more next year."

Rookie pitcher Bill Dunn, University of Alabama grad, returned his signed contract to the Pittsburgh Pirates. . . . Pirate Manager Fred Haney left for Havana, Cuba, to inspect the club's new training site.

Pitcher Marv Grissom, who surprised with a 12-10 record last season, became the 31st Chicago White Sox to sign his contract.

Francis Cardinal Spellman will head the list of speakers Sunday at the 30th annual dinner of the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Pee Wee Reese, Brooklyn shortstop, will receive a "Player of the Year" award.

Preston Ward, regular Chicago Cub first baseman before he entered military service in 1950, will be discharged by the Army March 20 and will be available for spring training.

Former Atlanta Cracker third baseman Ed Mathews and catcher Sammy White will be honored as Boston's "rookies of the year" Thursday night by the Boston Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The St. Louis Browns counted 29 players signed for the 1953 season and looked forward to a contract confab scheduled for next week with the "missing" Vic Wertz. Wertz had been ruled "unreachable" by the Browns when he left his Detroit home for Florida without leaving a forwarding address. The club finally reached him Wednesday and set the contract date.

Wednesday's meeting to decide the fate of the 14-year-old Interstate League was adjourned until Monday without a final decision, pending disposition of a vital sixth team franchise.

Former Mobile shortstop Don Zimmer, billed as the eventual successor to Pee Wee Reese, and three rookie pitchers signed Brooklyn contracts making it 29 Dodgers signed. Left-hander Len Lehman and right-handers Ray Moore and Ed Roebuck were the pitchers to sign up.

Bama Ray, Nashville outfielder, has been assigned to Beaumont of the Texas League.

Caldwell Foresees 'Poorer' Football

Princeton Coach Hits Change, Speaks to Alumni Club Here

By BERT PRATHER

Charlie Caldwell, the stocky disciple of single wing football, whose Princeton teams have compiled the proud record of 30 victories in their last 31 games, is convinced that killing of the two-platoon system will bring back a poorer brand of football this fall.

The old Princeton halfback (class of '25), who was in town for a dinner meeting with local Tiger alumni Wednesday night, said the unexpected action by the football rules committee in outlawing two-platoon football was strictly an economy move. And for the big schools, too.

"The coaches didn't want it and the players didn't want it, so it must have been the athletic directors who have their eyes on the budgets who decided to kill the rule," Caldwell said.

"I believe the move might be a boost for professional ball. They certainly are not going to change their rules and as a result their games should be much more attractive to football fans than college football as it will be under the one platoon."

The Tiger mentor, who has been coaching for 27 years, says the return to the old rule will pose a problem in coaching. Since the boys will go both ways, they will have to absorb twice as much coaching.

"Another thing, we will be scrambling to rest key men. Lack of fresh men is definitely going to slow down play. A good punter will be a great asset. Instead of wearing out your men by banging the ball the length of the field, you should see more punting on first down. Twenty or 30 yards gained on a punt exchange will be more of a premium," Charlie said.

Caldwell picked Frank McPhee as the greatest all-around player he ever coached. Fabulous Dick Kazmaier was his greatest offensive player. The Tiger coach said he never risked Dick on offense and as a result he made only one tackle in three years of varsity ball at Tigertown.

Charlie said that a Georgia boy—Tom Mathis of Griffin—is being counted heavily in his plans for this fall. Mathis played regular defensive left end last fall and is going to be a regular both ways come this fall.

women she has organized transport disabled veterans, aged people and crippled children to and from hospitals, railroad stations and places of amusement.

"She leads a band of night riders," he noted, "who work while Atlanta sleeps."

Dressed in a blue lace, ballerina-length dress, "Miss Kitty" accepted her award with the comment:

"I'm merely a spoke in a very large wheel. My associates in the Red Cross are the hub—and I want them to share this honor with me."

Five other outstanding Atlanta women were honored at the banquet, and each was presented a silver trophy. They were Miss Emma Billingsley, cited in business; Mrs. Medora Field Perkinson, the arts; Miss Judy King, defense effort; Miss Margaret Shannon, professions; and Dr. Evangeline Papageorge, education.

Miss Billingsley was honored for her achievements in "a difficult field generally reserved for men." She incorporated her present business, Builders' Specialties Co., in 1925. The committee noted she has achieved "tremendous success."

Mrs. Perkinson was lauded for her book "White Columns in Georgia" and her contribution to Georgia history and culture. Her "Marie Rose" column in the Atlanta Journal-Constitution Magazine was cited as "a great service to humanity in relieving mental stress."

CIVIL DEFENSE

Miss King, administrative supervisor of the Atlanta Filter Center, was honored for her contribution to civil defense. Under her leadership, more than 650 Filter Center volunteers have been recruited to help alert this area in case of air attack.

Miss Shannon, Atlanta Journal reporter, was cited for her "many services for the public good." The professions committee said her series of articles on Georgia schools "had much to do with the establishment of the Minimum Education Foundation, and the resulting School Building Authority."

Dr. Papageorge, associate professor of biochemistry at Emory University, was honored "for the fine influence she has had on all her students." She was the first woman to have a full-time appointment with the Emory medical school and she set up Emory's first course for medical technicians.

GIFT FOR MAYOR

Mrs. William H. Schroder, chairman of the WOTY board, presented gifts from the board to Mayor Hartsfield, master of ceremonies at every WOTY banquet, and Mills Lane Jr., president of the Citizens and Southern National Bank, 1953 sponsor.

Women of the Year for the last nine years were introduced and given Hawaiian leis and kisses—by representatives of the past nine sponsors. They included Mrs. Francis Abreu, 1943; Mrs. W. G. Unions Oppose Ford Plea To Ike for Old Price Index

No Indication That President Will Intervene in Labor Tiff

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—Requests for revival of an abandoned consumers' price index have reached the White House, giving President Eisenhower his first labor problem.

Decay Cut By Fluoride, Test Shows

MARSHALL, Tex., Jan. 28—A six-year experiment in this East Texas city was cited today as proof that fluoride in drinking water can drastically reduce dental decay.

The test was one of the most carefully controlled experiments in modern dental research. Both the American Medical Association and the American Dental Association co-operated.

X-rays of continuous-resident six year olds here, compared with those in another Texas community without fluoride, showed:

1. The Marshall children have 57 per cent fewer cavities than those of the same age group in the other city—Jacksonville, Tex., 70 miles away.

2. More than 35 per cent of the Marshall six year olds have no cavities whatever. Only 13 per cent of Jacksonville's are cavity-free.

3. The cavity rate among Marshall children is declining steadily. Cavities among Jacksonville children, in most years during the period, showed an increase.

Dr. Edward Taylor, head of the Texas State Health Department's Dental Division, announced results of the six year test at a meeting today of civic clubs in this city of about 23,000 people.

It was in 1946 that Marshall agreed to become the first city in the South to serve as a "guinea pig" in the mass experiment. A carefully measured amount of powdered fluoride—the substance can be a deadly poison in too-large amounts—has been put in drinking water since.

"SCARES" IGNORED
The experiment continued despite intermittent "scares" over the nation—warnings that fluoride was crippling, that there might be a relationship between fluoride consumption and cancer, that people were being given "rat poison," that teeth would be discolored.

From 1946 until the last test in 1952, the youngsters were carefully checked for dental and physical reactions. Results, kept highly secret, were double-checked and tabulated.

Now 460 U. S. cities put fluoride in their water. The American Dental Association says many more are preparing to do so. Other test cities dot the nation from coast to coast. In Chicago today, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers asked its local groups across the nation to promote fluoridation of community water supplies.

NAMED OUTSTANDING CITIZEN

Negro Doctor Serving Race 32 Years Honored in Texas

TAYLOR, Texas, Jan. 28—(AP)—This central Texas city tonight named as its outstanding citizen of 1952 a Negro doctor who has watched over the health of his people 32 years.

The award—an engraved plaque given by four local civic clubs—went to Dr. James Lee Dickey, whose quiet, easy-going ways belie a determination which conquered typhoid, tuberculosis and deadly infant diarrhea among Negroes here.

Dr. Dickey, now 59, came to Taylor as a young medical school graduate in 1921 to "stay a few years." But he "remained to do my life's work."

NEGROES BENEFITED

At that time, Negroes waited in hospital halls until doctors had treated white patients. Negroes were not allowed in theaters, and one, a stranger in town, was pistol-whipped for asking at the box office if he could be admitted.

Now Taylor has a 15-bed hospital for Negroes. Their health is better, the infant diarrhea death rate is down, tuberculosis almost wiped out. Negroes attend the Rita Theater on Main Street in this city of about 10 thousand people. They sit in the balcony.

"Race relations are getting better," Dr. Dickey believes. "We need time for the races to understand and to know each other. Everyone just needs to be patient, and things that seem to be problems won't be problems any more. We (the Negroes) can't make anybody like us. It's a thing of the heart. All we can do is wait and hope."

His greatest challenge came in 1933 when a typhoid fever epidemic struck his people. It was during Automobile manufacturers want the old-type index brought back and Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers, CIO, is opposed.

GEARED TO INDEX

Their wage contract, running to 1955, is geared to this index but the escalator clause—the heart of the contract—will become inoperable about a month hence, when a wage adjustment would be due, unless the abandoned index is revived.

Reuther also is opposed to any automatic switchover to the new index base. Instead, he wants to negotiate some improvements in the contract.

The Ford Motor Co. made the request for revival of the old index, but the other auto makers are believed in agreement.

Fifteen railroad unions want the old index continued, too, because their wage contracts are written around it, and they have so informed the White House by letter.

Whether Eisenhower will officially take a hand in the controversy is in doubt. There was no evidence at the Department of Labor that any revival of the index was contemplated. The time has already passed for collecting January prices under the old routine.

NO FUNDS

The department's official position is that it does not have the funds to keep the old index going. It would cost about $25,000 a month. In addition, there are certain technical obstacles, and the statistical experts don't like the idea of maintaining an obsolete index after having spent three years modernizing it.

Labor and management have had notices over that three-year period that the new base would take effect in January, 1953, and methods of converting to it have been suggested.

Other labor developments today included:

An announcement by Representative McConnell Jr. (Rep., Pa.) chairman of the labor committee, that extensive hearings on revision of the Taft-Hartley law will begin Feb. 10.

Senator Taft was named chairman of a labor subcommittee that will consider Taft-Hartley revisions, some of which the Ohioan already has proposed in bill form. No date for the Senate hearings was set.

Cadet Helps Dig Up Body Of Fiancee

LUBBOCK, Texas, Jan. 28—An Air Force cadet today helped Texas Rangers dig up the body of his 18-year-old fiancée, whom officers said he confessed strangling Jan. 8 with a Venetian blind cord.

As the rangers dug for the body in a lonely field, Walter E. Whitaker Jr. of Wethersfield, Conn., the cadet, grabbed a shovel and said:

"Let me do the digging. You'll develop a good case of heart trouble."

WARNS RANGERS

"I guess you guys know how horrible this is going to be," Whitaker said when he reached the body and made ready to expose it to full view.

Whitaker, 20, was arrested while training with the 3743rd Pre-Flight Training Squadron at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio. He was training at Reese Air Force Base near Lubbock when Miss Joy Fern White was slain.

He confessed he strangled her with a Venetian blind cord and undressed the body before burying it on top of an oil pipeline with the cord still tight around her throat, police said. He buried the clothes at another point.

ENGAGEMENT MOTIVE?

Ranger Capt. Raymond Walters said Whitaker would not say why he did it. But Walters believed that they got into an argument because Whitaker wanted to break his engagement to Miss White, a senior in high school.

Preliminary medical tests showed that she was not raped. Until today, when Whitaker was brought back to Lubbock to show where he buried the body, he was held in the Lackland AFB guardhouse at San Antonio.

District Atty. Travis Shelton said Whitaker was held at San Antonio because he feared he might be lynched in Lubbock. He will be returned to San Antonio from Lubbock and held until he can be mustered out of the Air Force and delivered to civil authorities.

Shocked by Dulles' Talk, Paris Offers Army Pact

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution
PARIS, Jan. 28—The French cabinet tonight submitted to Parliament the long-pending European army treaty, and with it the German peace agreement, and agreed on a long explanation of its reasons for doing so. The treaty was submitted tonight.

This French action coincided with the considerable shock caused here by the speech yesterday of John Foster Dulles, United States secretary of state, who said the European army treaty seemed "somewhat stalled" and that if Europe did not unite, the United States would have to reconsider its policy toward Europe.

As if in answer to Dulles, the French cabinet assured Parliament in a 4,000-word communication accompanying the treaties that the European army plan "not only enables us to meet a foreign menace but lays the foundation for a future organization of Europe." The cabinet then drew attention to Article 38 of the European army treaty which provides for steps toward creation of a European political authority for which proposals were developed at Strasbourg recently.

The action of the French cabinet, virtually agreed on last week, took the treaties out of the pigeonhole where they have lain for eight months since their signature because the cabinet of Antoine Pinay would not submit them to Parliament.

But this action did not refute Dulles' suggestion that progress was slow, for it probably will be a long step from submission of the treaties to their ratification. Premier Rene Mayer has promised he would not ask their ratification until the French and Germans had agreed on a European statute for the Saar, which seems a long way off at best, or until the French have negotiated a series of amendments to the army treaty in the form of new protocols.

The immediate purpose of submitting the treaties was to let Parliament begin studying them, not to suggest that it act at any definite time.

One newspaper called Dulles' speech brutal. Another described it as a veiled threat to Western Europe. Some observers thought the speech was intended to shock Europeans. Others suggested it was directed primarily to the United States Congress and to a skeptical American opinion as a guarantee that Dulles would

Heart Drive Plan Nears Completion

Plans for the 1953 heart fund drive to raise $75,000 in the Atlanta area in February are nearly complete, the four general campaign chairmen announced.

The chairmen, Charles Motz, James Lea, Edgar Neely Jr. and Emory Williams, said campaign strategy this year is to minimize the time volunteers must give to the drive. Solicitors have been chosen within each building or industry, they said.

Felix DeGolian heads the business and industry division, and Warren Griffin is chairman of the office buildings division. Other campaign leaders are Brunswick A. Bagdon, federal employees; J. C. Holton, state employees; Dr. Arthur Merrill and Dr. Park McGinty, physicians; Dr. J. B. Har-

Moon Eclipse Expected Tonight

Astronomy students at Agnes Scott and other stargazers in the Atlanta area plan to watch a total eclipse of the moon Thursday night.

Dr. William A. Calder, professor of astronomy at Agnes Scott and director of the Bradley Observatory, said the moon will rise at 5:01 p. m.—seven minutes after it has started entering the central part of the earth's shadow. The eclipse will be total from 6:05 to 7:30 p. m.

If the weather is clear, amateur photographers should be able to take good pictures of the eclipse, Dr. Calder said.

PSC Expense, Pension Bill Passed by House

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

In the face of stubborn opposition from some members, the House Wednesday voted $5,000 annual pensions for retiring members of the Public Service Commission and a $3,600 annual expense allowance each for active public service commissioners.

Appointive School Head Bill Pushed

Another attempt to permit election of county school board members and appointment of county school superintendents was initiated Wednesday by House Speaker Fred Hand.

The Mitchell Countian introduced a proposal which calls for the plan to become effective in counties upon approval of two successive grand juries after passage of the legislation.

If the first two juries called in a county school fail to act, an election could be called by petition of 30 per cent of the electorate.

Hand said he believes he has overcome opposition to similar legislation which he and Speaker Pro-tem George L. Smith of Emanuel County introduced last year.

OFFICIALS POLED

Before drafting the new bill, he said he polled a majority of the state's county superintendents and found that a majority favor making their positions appointive.

A bulky backlog of House business was built up at Wednesday's session, highlights of which were:

1. Senate passage of bills permitting publication of sample ballots and prohibiting ballot counting before polls close.

2. Introduction of a Senate bill which would bring all insurance companies under the Georgia law regulating fire and casualty insurance companies.

3. Senate passage of a bill authorizing surveys by the Department of Mines, Mining and Geology to locate water and to aid cities with water shortage problems.

4. A Senate resolution congratulating Senator George on his 75th birthday anniversary and for completing 31 years of service in the U. S. Senate.

5. Introduction in both houses of legislation to require auto owners to offer proof of financial responsibility—by insurance or otherwise—before receiving auto tags. (Present law requires proof of such responsibility after an accident occurs.)

In other actions, the House passed a bill to permit a rural telephone co-operative to buy the telephone system in Metter, and the Senate approved a technical change in the Jekyll Island Authority Act to allow lease of half of the island above the water at "mean high tide."

Edenfield Bill Would Repeal Shrimping Act

A bill to repeal the 1952 law governing shrimp trawling and to outlaw large trawling nets in the state's sounds and inland waterways was introduced Wednesday by Rep. Mose Edenfield of McIntosh.

The bill would repeal the act which was the center of a storm of controversy and a public hearing last year after game and fish protectors became involved in running battles with violators of state shrimping regulations.

Edenfield's bill would outlaw nets larger than 10 feet in diameter between Jan. 1 and March 16 for bait shrimp, and would close sounds and coastal rivers, except where local county elections open them, for all shrimping operations.

Mainly the bill outlaws the use of nets other than cast nets "in the tidal rivers, bays, and creeks at any time" to take shrimp or fish other than shad.

House Bill Seeks 9-Member Board For Milk Control

A House bill was introduced Wednesday to increase the membership of the State Milk Control Board from seven to nine members.

Rep. Guy Connell of Lowndes County, the author, said a retail grocer and another producer-distributor would be added to the board under the proposal to overcome complaints from retail merchants that they were not represented.

Guy Rutland of DeKalb said such a law would nullify the new expense raise by forcing members of the commission to spend the money in travel. Rep. Guy Connell of Lowndes County said he was fearful it would call for a hearing in every county through which a railroad passes. Mincey took the bill back to revise it and the committee did not pass it.

Rezoning
On Roswell
Is Barred

By HERMAN HANCOCK

A rezoning request for a $150,000 business development at Roswell and Habersham Rds., N. W., was among five petitions rejected Wednesday by the Municipal Planning Board.

The board turned down the plan of the Norwood Realty Co. to erect a supermarket and filling station at the Roswell Rd. location after residents opposed the petition.

Other rezoning petitions denied: a filling station at Peachtree and Roxboro Rds., N. E.; commercial use of property on Sewell Rd. near Flamingo Dr., S. W., and a site at Johnson Rd. and Jones Ave., and for a proposed apartment unit on Mathieson Dr., near Mathieson Pl., N. E.

The board approved a petition for commercial use of property at North Ave. and Nutting St., N. W., and held other petitions presented for further study.

Treasurer's Duties

City officials Wednesday generally were enthusiastic in their endorsement of a proposed charter amendment providing for the abolition of the "honorary" position of city treasurer. The proposal places the treasurer's duties under the comptroller and municipal revenue collector.

Political observers attributed the strong backing for the proposed amendment to two reasons:

1. Abolition of the post would prevent an internecine squabble between supporters of incumbent Treasurer Al Mathews and former Councilman Cecil Hester, who is seeking the treasurer's job.

2. Administration leaders do not want a split in an election year during which a mayor and all members of council will offer for new four-year terms.

Although their positions have not been stated officially, both Mayor Hartsfield, who supported Mathews, and Ald. Ed Gilliam, who championed Hester, reportedly have agreed that the proposed amendment is the solution to the fight over the treasurer's post.

3d All-Red Signal

Traffic Engineer Karl Bevins Wednesday said Atlanta's third all-red traffic control signal will be installed in about two weeks at the intersection of Lakewood Ave., Perkerson Rd., Brewer Blvd., and Springdale Dr., S. W. The new installation will stop all traffic and allow pedestrians to cross the intersection at any point. The facility will call for 10 separate signals.

Model Plane Clubs

Arrange Team Race

The Greater Atlanta and suburban model plane clubs will hold a team race at the Georgia Tech parking lot on Sunday, Feb. 1, with the West End Aeromodelers as hosts. The race is slated to begin at 1 p. m.

MACHINE CHECKS ATLANTA GERMS—A one-ton sampling machine stationed at Marietta and Forsyth Sts., N. W., is used to check germs in the air in downtown Atlanta. Scientists of the Communicable Disease Center, Public Health Service, Federal Security Agency, Wednesday made a collection of airborne bacteria and viruses. They said the tests were made to evaluate the mechanical device, which samples 500 cubic feet of air per minute.

Bill Proposes State Build,
Maintain County Highways

A Georgia mountain county legislator advocated the state's taking over construction and maintenance of all county highways in a resolution Wednesday before the House of Representatives.

Rep. W. K. Dean of Towns County declared better and cheaper roads could be produced by the state's mass production methods than each county could build.

His resolution called for a five-man Senate-House committee to study feasibility of the counties' turning over all their road-building equipment to the state and the state's stopping direct road grants to the counties. These grants now total nearly $10,000,000 annually.

Dean said he opposed too much centralization of power, but rural

Burglary Term
Is 30-40 Years

Herman Atkins, 22, a Negro, was sentenced to 30 to 40 years Wednesday after he pleaded guilty to 20 counts of burglary.

Atkins, whose address was listed as 252 Wellington St., S. W., was sentenced by Judge Claude Shaw of Superior Court. The term will follow a previous burglary sentence he is serving now.

Police said he entered 20 homes and business establishments in southeast and southwest Atlanta between April and August of 1952.

Illinois mines produced more than 10 per cent of U. S. coal in 1952.

Martin Returns Rep. Brown
To Contract Watchdog Unit

Special to the Constitution
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—Rep. Paul Brown of Elberton Wednesday was appointed by Speaker of the House Martin as a member of the joint congressional committee on defense production, better known as the "watchdog" committee on government defense contracts.

The Georgia congressman will be the ranking Democratic house member of the committee, consisting of five members from the House and five from the Senate. During the past session he served as vice-chairman of the group.

"Our purpose will be to maintain close scrutiny of all government defense projects to see that the taxpayers get value received for the money spent," he said.

"We will make sure that the defense program is carried out as Congress proposed when the appropriations were approved."

Brown gained national attention at the last session by calling government officials on the carpet when evidence of laxity appeared in the huge defense program. He said he intended to follow the same stringent course under the new Eisenhower administration.

Atlantan Cleared
In U. S. Tax Case

A federal court jury Wednesday acquitted Wallace W. Lowe, Atlanta produce dealer, on charges of income tax evasion. Lowe, who was indicted in 1948, was charged with reporting only $18,652.38 of $55,461.83 income for 1943-44.

Another jury heard opening testimony in the government's case against Cleo Gregory, Negro inmate of Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, who was indicted for murder in the screwdriver stabbing of John W. Douglas, another inmate, on Dec. 18.

Lamps To Be Beacons Of Help for Atlanta's Polio-Stricken Youth

By JEAN ROONEY

"Turn on your light tonight," appeal 12,000 Atlanta-area women who will compose the Mothers' March on Polio from 7 to 8 p. m. Thursday.

Atlanta women who have fought the nation's No. 1crippler in their own homes and mothers who want to keep the disease from their own doors are composing the city's largest annual fund-raising "fighting force."

Determined not to dun neighbors who don't want to contribute, the marching women will visit only homes with lighted porch lamps.

Apartment dwellers are asked to indicate their interest by tying a handkerchief on the doorknob or placing a shoe on the doorstep.

Several men will join the mothers' ranks for the Thursday March. They are Emory students and members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Boys Club youngsters will also assist the "moms."

To sound the attack at 7 p. m. Thursday, fire department sirens will be sounded throughout the entire city.

In Decatur, police cars will simultaneously sound their sirens at 7 p. m.

Patterned on an efficient military set-up, workers have been appointed from "Private" to "General" levels. On the home, block, neighborhood and district levels, mothers will be joining the hour-long effort.

Mrs. W. H. Alday and Mrs. H. D. Avra will head the drive in Atlanta. Mrs. W. Guy Hudson is the DeKalb Mothers' March chairman.

Nominations Invited for Year's Mother

MARY HAWORTH

Man Deplores Fiancee's Ties to Former In-Laws

Whom would you nominate for "Mother of Georgia"?

Georgia citizens are invited to submit their nominations for their favorite "Mom" to Georgia Mother's Committee before Feb. 17.

Nominations should be mailed to Mrs. Stewart Colley, Grantville, Ga., who heads the contest.

The "Mother of Georgia" must be:

1. An outstanding citizen in her community.
2. A worker in at least three organizations, one of religious nature.
3. A "natural" mother, not the parent of adopted or foster children.

Three letters of reference from leaders of the organizations in which the nominee participates and a photograph of the nominee must be included with the letter of nomination. The photograph will not be returned, Mrs. Colley states.

Temple Sisterhood

A French luncheon menu and "French" dancing girls will highlight the annual donor luncheon of the Temple Sisterhood at 12:30 p. m. Monday at The Temple.

Entitled "Sisterhood Pariesene" the review will tell the story of the organization's activities "with a French accent." Mrs. I. M. Weinstein, Mrs. Bernard Lippman, Mrs. Charles Lewis and Mrs. Seymour Eise-man will take the leads.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For 18 months I have been keeping steady company with Ann and we are planning on marriage. I am deeply in love with her and I have every reason to believe that my love is returned. But my problem is Ann's ties with the family of her former husband. Her family and his were next-door neighbors from her childhood, and are the best of friends.

Ann was married to Tom for eight years and was divorced 10 years ago after he left her. His mother sided with Ann and the two women have remained on the friendliest terms—which I find commendable. But the fly in the ointment is that Ann persists in visiting her former mother-in-law even as we are planning to marry.

I know she cares no more for Tom than for a stranger and makes her visits when he won't be there, but can you imagine my feelings in future years, sitting alone some evening, knowing Ann is visiting her former mother-in-law?

Perhaps I am wrong, and if I am I shall try to adjust myself to the situation. We have had many bitter arguments over this and we both are pigheaded enough to insist we are right.

DEAR P. W.: Your opposition to Ann's continued exchange with her former mother-in-law is understandable as a manifestation of infantile jealous anxiety. But it is not defensible on grounds of love, logic or common sense.

It means that you feel a frightened need to exclusively own and exploit the beloved. You would have her be completely absorbed in you only. This devouring attitude signifies that you suffer from insufficient self-esteem. Any wholesome man, widower or bachelor, getting into adult years, should have a substantial backlog of warm friendships to give him sympathy for Ann's durable rapport with her mother-in-law—especially as the two families are longtime close friends.

My advice is to open your heart to the idea of becoming a friend of all who are friends of Ann—including her former mother-in-law. —M. H.

Red Cross Plans New Workers' Class

"Canteen lassies" are needed by the Atlanta Red Cross.

A new class to train volunteers for canteen service in the Blood Center and on mobile units will begin at 2 p. m. Tuesday, Feb. 3, at Red Cross headquarters, 848 Peachtree St., N. E.

Classes will meet for five sessions on Tuesdays and Thursdays, with Mrs. Martha Clarke as instructor. Training will cover nutrition, mass feeding and preparing party refreshments. Canteen volunteers will be asked to serve four hours a week.

Exercise Is Answer To Bulges

By IDA JEAN KAIN

When extra calories snuggle around the waist, other curves are crowded out. This widening at the waist squares off the short figure and gives a heavy-set look to the large-framed girl. It even makes a botch of the near normal-weight's figure. Moreover, added bulk at the waist adds years.

Slimming this middle measurement can be a fast process if the exercise is directed to the right muscles. This resistance exercise is the remedy for restoring tone to the muscles at the sides of the waist...

Position: Stand in a doorway with one side pressed against the door frame and with hands gripping the frame above head and at shoulder height. Keep feet together.

Movement: Pull up strongly with the lower abdominal muscles and hold hips tucked under. Slowly pull away from the door frame and bend to other side. Keep it up until a strong pull is felt along the waistline region. Come back to position and repeat three times. Change sides and bend to other side. Later the exercise can be repeated a dozen times on each side with a pause for relaxing between each half dozen counts.

MISS MAGGIE Z. MASON

Miss Mason's engagement to Sfc. Walter O. Cushing of Commerce and Atlanta, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Mason of Decatur. The wedding will take place in February.

Pistol Meet Set

North Fulton Pistol Club meets on Friday night with the president, Dr. Floyd McRae, at his home on Habersham Rd. Leo Skvirsky will speak and there will be an election of officers.

Alumnae Club To Entertain

The Atlanta Wesleyan Alumnae Club will entertain at tea honoring Dr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Martin at 3 o'clock on Saturday, Feb. 7, at the home of Mrs. Robert D. Jones at 1067 Stovall Blvd., N. E.

A number of guests from a distance will attend the tea, including Wesleyan trustees, Mrs. Julian Hightower of Thomaston, Mrs. W. D. Anderson, Mrs. J. C. Anderson and Mrs. C. C. Hinton, all of Macon, Miss Annabel Horne who is assistant to the president at Wesleyan and who is retiring this year, and Mrs. Charles Nadler of Macon.

Junior Achievers Plan First Southern Conference Friday

A banquet and dance at 7 p. m. Friday at the Henry Grady Hotel will highlight the first annual Southern Junior Achievers' Conference this week end. George H. Brodnax, vice-president and manager of the Atlanta division, Georgia Power Co., who recently returned from a stay in England, will be principal speaker. Members of the JA board of directors will be special guests. A semi-formal dance will follow the dinner.

Arthur L. Harris, president of Atlanta Paper Co., will give the welcome address for the first business session at the Atlanta Public Library. The Rev. Wilson Sneed will pronounce invocations.

"To get Southern forces together and improve each others' programs" is the objective of the conference, according to Marilyn Moulton of Sylvan Hills High, in charge of preparations. This attractive teen-ager was one of the Atlanta delegates to the National Junior Achievers' Conference in Philadelphia last summer.

Annie Lou Hardy Mrs. S. W. Sawin Arrives for Visit

A charming, gray-haired, soft-spoken matron who is president of two thriving schools in Wilmington, Del., Mrs. Sanford W. Sawin, arrived in the city yesterday for a visit to Mrs. E. V. Camp at the Georgian Terrace.

Her schools are the Sunny Hills Lower School and the Sanford Preparatory School which she established in 1930 as a memorial to her son, Sanford Jr. Starting with eight students, the two institutions now boast of an enrollment of 180 and a lovely 180-acre campus some eight miles from Wilmington.

It was after the death of her son at the age of 10 that Mrs. Sawin, a Smith graduate and holder of a master's degree from the University of Delaware, felt the need of something to do, for by this time all her children were in college.

Her daughter, Nancy, is superintendent of the high school and is, incidentally, a member of the All-American Hockey Team, while another daughter, Marry, teaches math and music. A son, William, is manager. There are two other children who are married and living in Wisconsin. The late Mr. Sawin was associated for years with the DuPont Co.

The Sawins met Mr. and Mrs. Camp in Whitby, Canada, where the Atlantans maintain a summer home. The visitor will be the center of much informal entertaining while here.

IMPORTANT VISITORS arriving Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Reynolds Jr. of Winston-Salem, N. C., who came from their winter home on Sapelo Island to be overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Malon Courts on W. Wesley Rd.

Mrs. Reynolds was before her marriage last August Mrs. Murial Greenough, a native of Canada. Mr. Reynolds came to Atlanta to attend a board meeting of Delta Air Lines.

LESLIE IS THE NAME given to the daughter born Jan. 16 to Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Garges at Crawford Long Hospital. Mrs. Garges is the former Hayden Fleming.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, VISITORS here are Mrs. Norman Bennett and her children, Betsy, Norman Jr. and Marshall, who are guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall B. Hall, on W. Andrews Dr. Mrs. Bennett, the former Elizabeth Hall, is the wife of Lieutenant Colonel Bennett, who is on duty at Lockburn Air Force Base.

OFF TO NASSAU on Thursday are Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Fraser, who will vacation for 10 days at the island resort.

MR. AND MRS. L. P. KILPATRICK are in New York, where they are guests at the Essex House for 10 days. They will return on Sunday.

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS Y. DAWSON of Charleston and Mrs. Joseph Brennan of Cleveland, Ohio, are guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Groves, on Rumson Rd.

Wallpaper Origin Traced to Chinese

The same sage Chinaman who invented gunpowder for the shootin' ar'n stationed in the den may have been responsible for the wallpaper behind it. Though such a case is unlikely, that ancient Eastern civilization can claim the origin of wallpaper as well as gunpowder and printing. By mid-sixteenth century, European men of wealth were decking their dwellings with hand-painted Chinese scrolls, backed by canvas and mounted on wooden frames. From this modest beginning, modern wallpaper evolved.

Certain rooms are better suited for wallpaper than others. Halls, where there is rarely a place for fabric and scant space for furniture, need bright design for the walls. A figured wallpaper fits this interior and quite bold patterns can be used effectively.

Wallpaper lends itself to dining rooms, which stand little traffic during the day and furniture arrangement is stereotyped. Patterns may be large or small, depending on size and furnishings. Personalities of the owners may dictate a splashy print or a subdued geometric. A perky calico suits smaller dining rooms, where bolder paper would knock you down.

Wallpaper can be a happy choice for the bedroom. Here paper is more personal than scattered over the rest of the house in "public" rooms.

Casual florals suggest a young lady. Stylized flower motifs fit guest rooms or master bedrooms. Certain design-like patterns denote masculinity. Even in the family bath, wallpaper can relieve clinical severity. And closets may often be rescued from mediocrity with proper papering.

Peanuts, Pecans, Poultry Plentiful This Week

Plentiful products, peanuts, poultry, pecans—almost beats the Peter Piper Picked a Peck twister. But these Georgia foods should be on the tip of your tongue every time you go grocery shopping.

Topping the threesome in availability this week are peanuts. Use them for salads, sandwiches and between-meal cracker spreads.

New peanut products developed in Georgia by the U. S. Department of Agriculture include eight-ounce rolls of peanut snack wrapped in transparent film tubing and flavored with orange, maple and chili. It may be sliced off like smoked cheese. Orange, maple and chocolate-flavored peanut spread now comes packed in eight-ounce jars.

Aiken Gas Blast Probe Is Ordered

AIKEN, S. C., Jan. 28.—A state investigation into the sale of commercial gas was ordered today as weary disaster crews dug 10 charred bodies from the steaming rubble of a $20,000 gas explosion here Tuesday.

The 10th body, that of Mrs. Ruth Maddrey, was recovered this afternoon, more than 30 hours after exploding gas shattered an electrical appliance store and sent fires roaring through four more stores.

Police had said it was possible one or two others were trapped when the explosion sent fire sweeping through the wrecked buildings, but only 10 were known to have been trapped.

The other nine were identified by police as David O. Rutland, Miss Emily McCarter, John Watson, Miss Mae Weeks, Jack Neibling, Nelson Long, Bubber Moseley, Mrs. R. B. Dunkin, and Jack Holley.

Meanwhile, in Columbia today, the South Carolina House of Representatives voted to investigate the sale and use of commercial gas. A five-member committee was created for the purpose after Rep. Poliakoff of Spartanburg introduced a resolution as the result of the Aiken explosion.

Million U. S. Children To Get Polio Globulin

An Atlanta Red Cross official said Wednesday an estimated one million children will be given gamma globulin injections this year. Globulin prevents paralysis among polio victims, he said.

W. W. Jefferson, Southeastern area manager of the Red Cross, said in an address before Chattanooga area Red Cross chapters "approximately two million of this country's 30 million children will be exposed to polio."

Gamma globulin, Jefferson said, is only an "emergency stop-gap," and the one million injected units to be given "will be just about half the needed amount," provided past statistical ratios mean anything this year.

"Final answer" in injections, he added, probably is a vaccine first publicized Tuesday by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Spare Doomed Vet, Ga. Solicitor Asks

Teacher Pay Debated by Twitty, Gowen

Rep. Charlie Gowen of Glynn County, supporter of a 10 per cent teacher pay increase, said Wednesday night it would take an average increase of 33 per cent to raise salaries of Georgia school teachers enough to equal the pay of other state employees.

Gowen said he found the average state employee is receiving a salary of $3,300 yearly against an average pay of $2,475 yearly for schoolteachers.

Appearing on WSB-TV Press Gallery, Gowen added state employees got a 10 per cent increase in pay last year. "I think we ought to do as much for the schoolteachers as the clerks in the Capitol," he said.

But House Floor Leader Frank Twitty of Camilla, also a guest on the program, challenged Gowen "for anyone else" to show administration leaders where the money is coming from for a teacher pay raise.

"The regular budget is $230,000,000," Twitty said. "We've got a surplus of $20,000,000, with an anticipated income of $220,000,000 for the next two years. If we hold the budget line at that figure, we'll have no leeway for pay raises for schoolteachers or anything else," he concluded.

Under the present administration, Twitty contended, teachers have fared well. When the administration took over, teacher pay averaged $1,750, he said. "It's now $2,550," (Gowen's figure was $75 less).

The House floor leader said that in order to finance the Minimum Foundation Program and 10 per cent across-the-board teacher pay raises—which would cost an estimated eight million dollars—the state would have to raise $20,000,000.

The two legislators were interviewed by Constitution Managing Editor William Fields, and M. L. St. John, political writer. Editor Ralph McGill was moderator.

Ogletree's conviction in Monroe County was subsequently affirmed by the State Supreme Court and the Pardon and Parole Board has denied one plea for commutation of his sentence, Garland said.

Council Police Group Urges Strong Vehicle Title Law

An adequate state automobile title law to reduce car thefts in Atlanta was urged Wednesday night by City Council's police committee.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, committee chairman, proposed that the committee ask City Council Monday to urge the Legislature to take action. His suggestion followed reading of the 1952 report of the police department showing that 1,460 cars were stolen in Atlanta last year.

Police Chief Herbert Jenkins said Georgia stands fourth in the nation in the number of stolen vehicles. He added that only New York, Illinois and California report more cases than Georgia.

The committee approved Gilliam's proposal unanimously and said the measure will be offered Monday.

In other actions the committee recommended that operating permits for the Ace Billiard Parlor, 17½ Edgewood Ave., N. E., be revoked and that the boarding house permit issued to Mrs. R. J. Barfield, 365 Ormond St., S. E., be revoked.

The police report showed that 1,231 stolen cars were recovered in 1952. In 1951, 1,060 were stolen and 1,024 recovered. In 1948, 1,116 were stolen and 1,120 recovered.

Many of the vehicles were stolen outside the city, however.

KUZNICK FORGIVEN—
SOUTH GATE, Calif., Jan. 28—Cpl. Robert Von Kuznick, 25, who went AWOL from Fort Knox, Ky., to fight in Korea, is kissed by his fiancée Shirley Taylor, 18, after he arrived here Wednesday. Shirley, who said the corporal had a lot of explaining to do, said they plan to be married soon. Von Kuznick was fined $10 for his combat tour and sent home on rotation.

Officer Shot By Woman In Accident

An off-duty policeman was seriously wounded when he was shot in the chest with his own service revolver at the home of another policeman Wednesday according to information given city police. The shooting was termed accidental by the victim and a 21-year-old woman who was examining the weapon at the time of the shooting, police said.

Homicide detectives said Ptl. A. L. Donald, 32, of 769 B. E. Court, S. E., apparently was shot by Mrs. Lucy Ann Beavers of 781 Washington St., S. W., while they were visiting the home of Joe H. Allen at 1574 Paxon Ave., S. E., about 3 p. m. Wednesday.

Allen, who previously had been under suspension from the police force, resigned Wednesday night. He was not present at the time of the shooting, officers stated.

Mrs. Beavers, a divorcee, was booked on a charge of suspicion of shooting another, officers said.

Donald told officers the gun fired accidentally when the young woman dropped it while examining the weapon. He said he had known her for about a year and that there was no "trouble" between them.

Mrs. Beavers said she was "just playing" when she pointed the cocked gun at Donald and that it went off when he "slapped" it, records stated.

She told officers she and Donald went to Allen's house around noon. She said she had known Officer Donald about 14 months.

Grady physicians said the bullet entered the right side of the chest and ranged upward almost to the base of the neck. Donald was later transferred to Georgia Baptist Hospital where his condition was reported as "fair" Wednesday night.

Perfect Records Held Justification For Rock Quarry

The Rock Quarry prison for incorrigibles has "paid off," according to State Department of Corrections Director R. E. Warren.

Perfect records for the past year have been posted by 38 prisoners, formerly considered hopeless, Warren said, and they all will be reclassified soon.

The prisoners rehabilitated were Negroes and whites, evenly divided, he said. He said all but 15 will be transferred to other prisons.

Those 15 have families near the Rock Quarry prison at Buford, or have prison jobs they want to keep.

Navy Pilot's Rescuers Get Medals

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 28 (AP)—Three passersby who braved 20-foot flames to rescue a Navy pilot whose plane had crashed won Carnegie hero medals today.

They were among 17 persons in eight states given bronze medals at a meeting of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, set up by the late steelmaster Andrew Carnegie. Two of the heroes died in saving the lives of others.

PLANE CRASH

The Navy plane which crashed was being flown solo by Joseph A. Welzen, 26, of Prairie View, Ill. It came down, turned over and caught fire Oct. 19, 1951, in a field at Millville, N. J.

Welzen, fastened in with his safety belt, was stunned and badly hurt. His feet were wedged under the wrecked instrument panel. Flames spread to the cockpit and set fire to his clothing. He was unable to help himself.

Five men rushed to his aid but could not get him free. When flames rose 10 feet above the ship, the heat drove back two of the rescuers.

Despite the danger of an explosion, the other three men kept tugging at Welzen's clothing until suddenly his safety belt gave way and they were able to drag him from the cockpit.

RESCUE PILOT

Flames towered 20 feet high over the plane as the rescuers carried Welzen to safety and beat out his burning clothing. The pilot lost a leg and was in a Philadelphia hospital for a year.

The three men who wouldn't take no for an answer are Harry M. Schuster, 29, an airplane mechanic; A. William Garrison, 27, a shipping expediter; and Walter F. Bigelow, 37, a secretary for the Aircraft Parts Corp., all of Millville, N. J.

The commission's awards, by states, were: New Jersey and New York, 4 each; Pennsylvania, 3; Maryland, 2; and Idaho, Kansas, Ohio and Wisconsin, 1 each.

In addition, the commission gave one pension of $960 a year, a disability benefit of $110, and educational awards totalling $6,750.

New Job Bias Bill Set

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Senators Ives and Humphrey will introduce a new anti-job discrimination bill tomorrow that exempts small employers in an attempt to soften the hostility of Southern Democrats.

However, this and other modifications are not expected to lessen Dixie dislike, certain to blossom into a filibuster if the legislation reaches the Senate floor.

Ives, New York Republican, and Humphrey, Minnesota Democrat, sponsored similar legislation last year. It was approved by the Senate labor committee but never reached the debating stage. Previous FEPC bills have been talked to death.

The sponsors, anxious to avoid the FEPC (Federal Fair Employment Practices Commission) tag on the bill, labelled it "The Federal Equality of Opportunity in Employment Act."

Ives and Humphrey said eight Republicans, eight Democrats and independent Senator Morse (Ore.) are sponsoring the bill.

They said it calls for maximum use of education and persuasion, a minimum of enforcement power and encourages state and local action.

CAPITOL NOTEBOOK

Budget Switch Hits Many Items

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Spending on Georgia's health and hospital services may be cut. Spending on Georgia's agricultural services may be less. Spending on the development of Jekyll Island Park may be eliminated. Spending on welfare benefits and welfare institutions may be trimmed. Spending of state funds on state ports may be eliminated.

Does that sound fantastic? Well, it will be so, if Governor Tamm's proposed budget for the next two fiscal years is approved by the Legislature.

The other day we reported that although the governor was fighting to hold the line at $230,000,000 total appropriation, he had made increases to some state services by a total of more than $3,000,000. Two million of this increase in the "regular" budget is for school building construction. The present program is $10,300,000 in school construction. The governor urges a $12,500,000 program in the "regular" budget, and an additional $2,500,000 in the "contingent" section.

To get this additional $3,000,000 plus while holding the line, the governor had to slash more than $3,000,000 from other state services.

Here are the decreases he recommended: agriculture, cut by $325,000, most of which is in farm markets; alcoholism commission, $160,000; University System operations, $39,000; hospital building program, $500,000; local tuberculosis sanatorium, $100,000; public health benefits, $20,000; welfare benefits, $265,000; welfare buildings and equipment, $750,000; state housing authority, $10,000.

The state currently is spending $764,659.29 on Jekyll Island development. Nothing is recommended for this in the new "regular" budget, but $700,000 is asked in the "contingent" section.

The State Ports Authority is receiving $250,000 in state funds for lands, buildings and equipment, and $40,000 in state funds for operations at present. Nothing is asked in the next "regular" budget, but $250,000 for land, buildings and equipment and $40,000 for operations is recommended in the "contingent" section.

CONFEDERATE PENSIONS
Special appropriations of $125,000 to the two state vocational trades schools and $500,000 to the deaf school now being spent were for the current period only. They are not recurring in the next budget. There is a drop of $80,000 in Confederate pensions and records in the new recommendations.

In an unexpected turn of events, the highway appropriation is losing money in the "regular" appropriation recommendation, although the new constitutional provision earmarks gasoline taxes for roads. Net decrease for highways is approximately $800,000.

Southern Co. Income Up 3 Million

The Southern Co. had a consolidated net income of $20,232,112 in 1952 which was an increase of $3,327,382 over 1951 earnings, Southern Chairman E. A. Yates told a group of security underwriters in New York Wednesday.

Yates and other executives of the system which operates power companies in Alabama, Georgia, Florida and Mississippi, met with the group to discuss financing plans for 1953. Southern's expenditures in 1953 will total approximately $100,000,000, Yates pointed out.

The 1952 earnings amounted to 1.18 per share, compared with $1.03 on some 770,000 fewer shares in 1951. Yates said 1953 earnings are expected to show improvement.

He said the four operating companies have received certificates of accelerated amortization to the extent of about 48 per cent on some $195,000,000 of facilities and that the resulting deferment of federal income taxes in the 1952-53 period will amount to approximately $39,400,000 based on present tax laws. Some $1,500,000 of the sum will be available from the source for construction. In addition, he said, the operating companies plan to issue some $20,000,000 in their senior securities during the first half of 1953 and the Southern Co. will probably sell common stock to the extent of about 1,000,000 shares in the spring or early summer. The balance of the $100,000,000 needed for construction will be generated internally by the operating companies, Yates said.

Tri-County Row

Over Officers' Pay Develops

Sharp words were exchanged Wednesday in the House counties and county matters committee when representatives from three counties tangled over a bill which would remove all their counties' officers from the salary system and return them to the fee system.

The bill was offered by Rep. Frank Birdsong of Troup to repeal a bill passed when Troup County was the only county in the state with between 40,000 and 50,000 population. Those figures pinpoint the bill's application in its title.

Rep. B. C. Gardner of Dougherty County said he wanted an opportunity to hold a local referendum before county officials in Dougherty were changed to comply with the bill's provisions.

But Hall County Rep. William Gunter said if the bill passed, his county officials, now being paid salaries, "would be illegally paid, and we started paying them on salary basis just because we found this bill held us to do so legally. Hall County did not pass the bill."

A suit brought by Hall County citizens against the local legislation is slated for Supreme Court action next month, Gunter said.

General Wingate, British Leader In Mid-East, Dies

DUNBAR, Scotland, Jan. 28—

Gen. Sir Francis Reginald Wingate, one of the leading figures in Britain's expansion of power in the Middle East at the end of the last century, died today. He was 91.

Wingate became governor general of the Sudan and commander-in-chief of the Egyptian Army in 1899 during the days when Britain held full sway over those vast Nile Valley areas.

Wingate, who spoke Arabic, helped in the reconquest of the Sudan as head of British military intelligence in that area. In his 17 years as head of the Egyptian Army he became the last survivor of the British officers who controlled those forces.

In 1917 he was appointed High Commissioner of Egypt for two years. This was the period in which Britain granted Egypt more freedom and laid the groundwork for the joint Anglo-Egyptian Government of the Sudan which currently is the subject of bitter dispute between the two nations.

Marines May Use Draft Next July

Dear Boss--Isn't it a pity that the eloquent dramatist Arthur Miller doesn't channel his indignations into an attack on the brutal Commie philosophy of the Kremlin. The ferocious purge trials aren't founded on mass hysteria; they are calculated, the lowest point of man's inhumanity to man. Miller perhaps is too close to the forest to see the trees.

As I watched his "Crucible" play on the Martin Beck stage, my reaction was one of regret that this powerful writer continues to avoid the most important problem of the 20th Century, the bloody and fearful excesses of Communism.

Somerset Maugham, at 79, recovering from a serious operation, says: "At my age, time becomes so short that I must finish my book of essays on Dickens, Fielding, Charlotte Bronte, Balzac, Tolstoy and Herman Melville. Then I want to see again the two cities of the world which most impressed me, Athens and Istanbul."

World War II RAF pilot Capt. Peter Townsend most often

Statements of the week: "Hollywood will need me much before I need Hollywood," to Swiss reporters from modest Charlie Chaplin. In contrast, Al Simmons' acknowledgment of his election to baseball's Hall of Fame: "I owe it all to Connie Mack. He made a big leaguer out of me." In the same humble vein, Dizzy Dean: "Never thought I'd be up there with those real big shots."

There may be some quality more enduring than modesty but it's difficult to name it.

House Armed Services Committee Chairman Short says that the Marines, facing the replacement of 100,000 men, may have to use the draft in July. . . Dick Knostman, Kansas State's greatest cage scorer, wears contact lenses!

Mrs. Gabby Hayes, alias . . . Katharine Hepburn planning a Broadway return next season in "Hedda Gabler." . . Aga Khan's heart specialist, Dr. Geoffrey Bourne, marrying Patricia McCready. . . Batista's Cuban police to be trained in FBI groove. . . NBC's Pat Weaver leaves Feb. 2 for French and Swiss Alps skiing.

A Rhyme a Day

Neighborhood mothers will climax the March of Dimes drive with house-to-house calls tonight. You are asked to turn on your porch light if you will make a contribution.

The mothers will parade tonight . . . for these are troubled times . . . they ask that you turn on your light . . . and join the March of Dimes . . . the light that indicates you will . . . invite them to come in . . . and let them have a dollar bill . . . or, better still, a "fin."

You know what it is all about . . . this drive on polio . . . we want to stamp this cripple out . . . so little kids can grow . . . to healthy man and womanhood . . . and anything you give . . . will do someone a lot of good . . . as surely as you live.

They say the battle's almost won . . . that progress has been made . . . and that they have it "on the run" . . . but still they ask your aid . . . to help the helpless in their need . . . so, do it if you can . . . you just can't do a finer deed . . . to help your fellow man.

Today, when darkness starts to fall . . . turn on your friendly light . . . to welcome Mamas who will call . . . and prove your heart is right.

Germ-Warfare Party Identified by a Phrase

Winter is upon us, with its closed rooms, its gatherings, celebrations, meetings and most important of all, its nationwide schools in session.

The horseman, Pestilence, rides abroad, beckoning the dupes who stand ready to march under his flag. He and his cohorts wage war against the nation, germ-warfare.

His cohorts can be found in the public-schools, in theaters, clubrooms, political gatherings, even, yes, in our own homes. Are you a fellow-traveler?

You can easily spot a member of the germ-warfare party. He often hides behind this phrase:

"Oh, I just have a little cold, nothing catchy." When you hear this crafty remark, don your oxygen-mask, shoot him with a glance, and run, do not walk, to the nearest open window.

Never let down your guard. Remember these disease-carriers in our midst are proud, nay, eager, to share their germs with their friends. They often boast of rising dauntless from a sickbed to attend the meeting, that no opportunity be lost to spray their "intestinal flu" upon the members. Often the members (dupes and fellow travelers) upon hearing this, offer a standing ovation, or at least a printed mention in the club magazine:

"Mrs. G. Ima Drip III presided at the tea-table after shaking the hands of all twenty new members!"

Public schools are infiltrated by administrators who expect teachers suffering from respiratory infections to teach (and spray) the class.

Business firms are supporters of the Pestilence Party, collaborating with infected employees by allowing them to work with healthy, noninfected workers.

Coaches and managers of football and basketball teams are high up in the Party. They boast of the team member who, although suffering from fever and sore throat, leaves his bed and with selfless devotion, sprays his germs upon his healthy teammates for four quarters, receiving rounds of applause from the student

Beware Coughs Following Flu

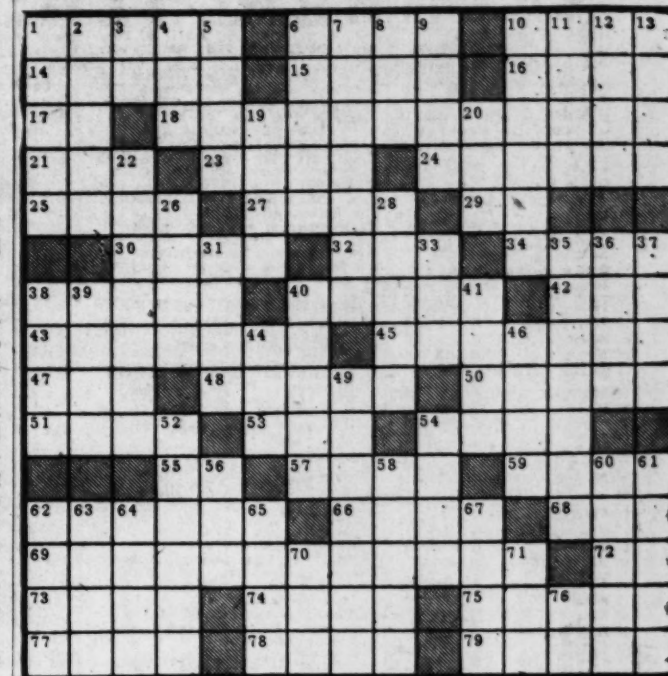

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected.

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes into the bronchial system to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm, and to aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Mirror of Your Mind

Are accidents really accidental?
Answer: Not at all. To the victim, an accident may seem the result of chance but studies have proven that nothing takes place without a reason behind it. Insurance surveys show conclusively that most of the accidents in a given industrial group occur in a very small portion of that group. The same with automobile driving where liability insurance rates are upped for young people under twenty-five. There are people with an unconscious urge toward self-destruction, and they should be kept out of situations of potential danger.

Is there a "cure" for nervousness?

Answer: No, but there is generally a remedy for what causes it. The term "nervous" is misleading. There was a time when doctors thought all bodily symptoms had a physical cause. If a person shook with fear, they thought the shaking was caused by a disorder of the nerves that control motion. Of course all motor impulses do come by way of the nervous system, but they originate in the mind; primarily in the emotions. When you are nervous, the chances are that your "nerves" are no more involved than your fingernails. "Anxiety" is what ails you, and there are several remedies for it. Self-control is vital.

Can a person develop "originality"?
Answer: Yes, but it's not easy. Developing originality means freeing yourself from fears and inhibitions. That takes a lot of doing. The one thing "original" about you is yourself. The more original you will become. But when inhibitions and fears cause you to put aside what you actually are and conform to conventional patterns or behavior, your originality goes down the drain. If you do your work the very best you know how, you'll be original; because nobody else can ever be you.

Japanese Group Asks Ban on Bull Fighting

TOKYO—There is no bull fighting in Japan, but the Japanese Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is asking the government for a ban against the Spanish and Mexican sport. Chicken Any Day Called Style Now

"Chicken every Sunday" is an obsolete term.

That's the contention of Dr. A. W. Brant, expert attached to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Poultry Section Research Center at Beltsville, Md.

"Development of local supplies has put fresh, ready-to-cook broilers in the display counters of retail stores in hundreds of towns and cities every day," he pointed out here Wednesday, "where chicken formerly was a week-end, New York-dressed seasonal product."

The nation is expected to consume almost a billion broilers in 1953. Dr. Brant told delegates at the final session of the sixth annual convention of the Southeastern Poultry and Egg Association. He predicted continued improvement in broiler chickens through selective breeding, and new use of hormones and chemicals in feeds.

A Minnesota turkey expert called for a 20 per cent reduction in production of heavy-breed turkeys in 1953. Dr. W. A. Billings of the University of Minnesota declared the industry "foolishly broke all records last year," with resultant drop in prices and losses to turkey-growers.

Dr. Billings said birds in the four-to-seven-pound range are most popular with modern housewives and predicted a trend to white-feathered turkeys. He said the small fryer-roaster family-size turkey is "giving the old stewing chicken a run for its money."

Control of coccidiosis, a disease which annually causes great loss to poultrymen, by immunization was urged by S. A. Edgar of Alabama Polytechnic Institute's Agricultural Experiment Station. A vaccine recently developed has been used with "considerable success" on more than 8,000,000 birds, Edgar reported. More than 2,500 poultrymen from all over the Southeast attended the three-day meeting at the Municipal Auditorium, with a number of delegates participating in panel discussions and demonstrations.

McDonough Wins New Honors in Education Field

Thomas McDonough, director of physical education at Emory University, has been elected an active fellow in the American Academy of Physical Education, D. K. Brace, president of the academy, announced.

McDonough will be inducted at the annual meeting in Chicago Feb. 16-18. Membership as "active fellows" is limited to 100 and is extended to the country's outstanding leaders in education and recreation.

The Emory professor is a former president of the College Physical Education Association and is a member of its executive council. He is a member of board of directors of the American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Religious Survey

Constitution State News Service, CEDARTOWN, Jan. 28.—The Rev. Roger W. Stone, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Cedartown, announced that a religious survey will be taken here on the afternoon of Feb. 8. All local churches will co-operate, he said.
